No. 1

JOURNALS

OF THE

HOUSE OF COMMONS

OF CANADA

OTTAWA, THURSDAY, 27th SEPTEMBER, 1962.

11.00 o'clock a.m.

Today being the first day of the meeting of the First Session of the Twenty-fifth Parliament for the despatch of business, Léon-J. Raymond, Esquire, O.B.E., Clerk of the House of Commons, Thomas Russell Montgomery, Esquire, Clerk Assistant of the House of Commons, and Lieutenant-Colonel David V. Currie, V.C., Sergeant-at-Arms of the House of Commons, Commissioners appointed per Dedimus Potestatem for the purpose of administering the oath to Members of the House of Commons, all attending according to their duty, the said Léon-J. Raymond, Esquire, O.B.E., laid upon the Table a List of the Members returned to serve in this Parliament received by him as Clerk of the House of Commons from and certified under the hand of N. Castonguay, Esquire, Chief Electoral Officer. The said certificate and list is as follows:

TWENTY-FIFTH GENERAL ELECTION

OFFICE OF THE CHIEF ELECTORAL OFFICER

This is to certify that since the dissolution of the Twenty-fourth Parliament on the nineteenth day of April, 1962, writs of election were issued on the same date by His Excellency the Governor in Council for the election of a member or members to serve in the House of Commons for every electoral district in Canada, such writs being severally addressed to the returning officers mentioned in the attached list and directing that, with the undermentioned exceptions, the nomination of candidates be held on the fourth day of June, 1962, and the poll, if required, on the eighteenth day of June, 1962. In the electoral districts of Cochrane, Kenora-Rainy River, Port Arthur, Chapleau, Saguenay, Bonavista-Twillingate, Burin-Burgeo, Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador, Humber-St. George's, Trinity-Conception, Churchill, Mackenzie, Meadow Lake,

Prince Albert, Athabasca, Jasper-Edson, Peace River, Cariboo, Skeena, Yukon, and Northwest Territories, the nomination of candidates was held on the twenty-second day of May, 1962.

And that an election was accordingly held in every electoral district in Canada on the eighteenth day of June, 1962, with the exception of the electoral district of Stormont, in the province of Ontario, where one of the candidates died prior to June eighteenth and where it became necessary under the Statute to postpone the election to a later date. The election in the electoral district of Stormont was, therefore, postponed by the returning officer, pursuant to the Statute in that behalf, until the sixteenth day of July, 1962, and a new nomination day fixed for the third day of July of the same year.

And that the persons named in the attached list have from time to time been returned as elected members to serve in the House of Commons pursuant to the said writs, their names having been duly entered in the order in which the returns were received in the book kept for that purpose pursuant to the provisions of the Statute on the subject, and notice of such returns having from time to time been duly published in the Canada Gazette.

Given under my hand at Ottawa this tenth day of August, 1962.

N. CASTONGUAY,

GOVERNMENT HOUSE
OTTAWA

27th September, 1962.

Sir,

I have the honour to inform you that His Excellency the Governor-General will arrive at the Main Entrance of the Parliament Buildings at 3.00 p.m. on this day Thursday the 27th September, 1962, and when it has been signified that all is in readiness, will proceed to the Chamber of the Senate to open formally the First Session of the Twenty-fifth Parliament of Canada.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

ESMOND BUTLER,
Secretary to the Governor-General.

The Honourable
The Speaker of the House of Commons,
Ottawa.

A Message was delivered by the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod:

Mr. Speaker:

His Excellency the Governor General desires the immediate attendance of this Honourable House in the Chamber of the Honourable the Senate.

Accordingly, Mr. Speaker, with the House, went up to the Senate Chamber, and Mr. Speaker spoke to the following effect:

May it please Your Excellency:

The House of Commons have elected me their Speaker, though I am but little able to fulfil the important duties thus assigned to me.

If, in the performance of those duties, I should at any time fall into error, I pray that the fault may be imputed to me, and not to the Commons, whose servant I am, and who, through me, the better to enable them to discharge their duty to their Queen and Country, humbly claim all their undoubted rights and privileges, especially that they may have freedom of speech in their debates, access to Your Excellency's person at all seasonable times, and that their proceedings may receive from Your Excellency the most favourable construction.

The Honourable the Speaker of the Senate then said:

Mr. Speaker:

I am commanded by His Excellency the Governor General to declare to you that he freely confides in the duty and attachment of the House of Commons to Her Majesty's Person and Government and, not doubting that their proceedings will be conducted with wisdom, temper and prudence, he grants and upon all occasions will recognize and allow their constitutional privileges.

I am commanded also to assure you that the Commons shall have ready access to His Excellency upon all seasonable occasions, and that their proceedings as well as your words and actions, will constantly receive from him the most favourable construction.

And the House being returned:

Mr. Speaker reported that the House had been in the Senate Chamber, and that he had, in their names and on their behalf, made the usual claim of privileges, which His Excellency had been pleased to confirm to them.

Mr. Diefenbaker, seconded by Mr. Churchill, by leave of the House, introduced Bill C-1, An Act respecting the Administration of Oaths of Office, which was read the first time.

Mr. Speaker reported that, when the House did attend His Excellency the Governor-General this day in the Senate Chamber, His Excellency was pleased to make a Speech to both Houses of Parliament, and to prevent mistakes, he had obtained a copy, which is as follows:

Honourable Members of the Senate:

Members of the House of Commons:

I welcome you to this first session of the twenty-fifth Parliament of Canada.

I know I speak for all Canadians when I say how pleased we were to have Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth The Queen Mother with us again. Her warmth and charm have added to the loyalty and affection for the Crown and our Queen.

This Spring His Royal Highness The Duke of Edinburgh spent several weeks here in connection with his Second Study Conference on the Human Consequences of the Changing Industrial Environment in the Commonwealth and Empire. Her Royal Highness The Princess Royal, during her stay in Canada last June, carried out her programme of engagements with simplicity and grace.

Canada has been honoured in the last few days by a visit from the President of Pakistan, His Excellency Ayub Khan, who accompanied my Prime Minister on his return from the Commonwealth Conference. We were happy to greet this distinguished leader of a great Commonwealth nation and to discuss with him matters of mutual interest.

Since we last met in this Chamber my wife and I have visited many parts of Canada and have received at Government House a great number of societies and organizations, including representatives of student groups and youth movements. We have been deeply impressed with the expressions of loyalty to the Crown by people in all walks of life.

The meeting of Commonwealth Prime Ministers just concluded has again provided an opportunity for frank discussions at the highest level and a demonstration of the close relationship which distinguishes this unique association of free nations. Canada joined in welcoming four new self-governing members of the Commonwealth—Sierra Leone, Tanganyika, Jamaica, and Trinidad and Tobago.

The Commonwealth Conference discussed Britain's negotiations with the European Economic Community and the economic and political implications for the Commonwealth and its members of possible British accession to the Community. Canada has a vital concern in these issues and the government will spare no effort to safeguard the interests of Canada while preserving the unity and strength of the Commonwealth as a whole.

Far-reaching changes are taking place in the trading relationships between nations and groups of nations. New opportunities are opening up for fruitful negotiations to reduce the barriers to trade on a general, non-discriminatory basis. My Government believes and has proposed that these important subjects should receive comprehensive consideration at a conference of representatives of like minded nations.

Canada has continued to play an increasingly effective role in international affairs. The division of Germany and the position of Berlin remain a source of friction despite continuing efforts to find a basis for a negotiated settlement. So long as the Communist powers continue actions that bring tension and distrust, Canada's defensive capability must be maintained both at home and on the frontiers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Europe and in the Atlantic.

The threat of war can be eliminated only by reaching effective international agreement on disarmament verified by means that inspire confidence. Canada will persist in its efforts to achieve this end.

Canadians have noted with satisfaction the establishment by the United Nations and the Food and Agriculture Organization, of a World Food Programme based on a proposal put forward by my Ministers. You will be asked to authorize a Canadian contribution to this programme.

My Government will ask you, as a significant step in rounding out the concept of Confederation, to consider a resolution to provide for the "repatriation" of the Constitution of Canada and to invite the concurrence of the provinces to this end.

As another means of making manifest the Canadian identity, my Government will invite the Provinces to a conference for consultation regarding the choice of a national flag and other national symbols.

Measures will be placed before you to provide for the division of the Northwest Territories into two territories, and to provide more self-government for the residents of that area as a step toward the ultimate creation of new Provinces in Canada's great North.

You will be requested to enact measures to give effect, with modifications, to certain of the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Publications.

Legislation respecting the Senate will be introduced.

To ensure that the redistribution of electoral districts is made objectively and impartially, you will be asked to approve a bill to establish an independent commission to recommend redistribution.

A measure will be placed before you to establish an Indian Claims Commission to investigate claims on the part of various tribes and bands that certain of their rights have been restricted or abrogated, and to make recommendations for the equitable and final settlement of such claims.

Economic activity in Canada has moved ahead sharply. This strong advance has resulted in more than 200,000 new jobs during the past twelve months. The objective of my Government is to accelerate this pace of advance. This would mean the creation over the next five years of more than 1 million new jobs and a corresponding growth in gross national product and in production for both the export and domestic market, already at record levels.

Such high levels of activity have not prevented the emergence of foreign exchange difficulties similar to those which confronted Canada in crisis proportions in 1947, and to those which have affected other major trading nations more recently. In June my Government found it necessary to put into immediate effect a comprehensive programme to strengthen the country's exchange reserves. Since that time Canada's exchange reserves have increased substantially. It is my Government's firm intention to remove the import surcharges included in this programme as soon as circumstances permit.

My Government will continue to take positive, constructive measures to strengthen Canada's balance of international payments. The recently stabilized exchange rate for the Canadian dollar has greatly helped Canadian producers in all parts of Canada both in the domestic and export markets. The new exchange rate is contributing as well to a large expansion in the Canadian tourist industry, which has also been aided by joint efforts of the Federal and Provincial Governments.

Canada's development will continue to require imports of capital, and to this end my Government will maintain a climate in Canada hospitable to foreign investment.

As one of my Government's measures to develop the Canadian economy, maintain a high level of employment and strengthen the balance of payments, you will be asked to approve legislation establishing a National Economic Development Board. This Board would be broadly representative and would review and report upon the state of the economy and upon economic policies. It would also have the duty of recommending to the Government particular projects or measures which it considers would be in the interest of national development, including projects which may require direct governmental participation by way of financial aid or otherwise.

The objective of my Ministers is a balanced budget. This will require the exercise of restraint in respect of controllable spending and an increased concentration of available resources on essential national projects designed to ensure the expansion of the Canadian economy. Steps will be taken to improve further the efficiency of government operations. The report of the Royal Commission on Government Organization will be helpful in achieving this improvement of administration while maintaining the high status of the Canadian public service. A programme of economies in government expenditures will be reflected in the revised Estimates to be placed before you.

A Royal Commission has been established to review the whole field of federal taxation and its impact on the Canadian economy, and to recommend reforms and improvements.

The purposes of the fiscal measures to be placed before you at this Session will be the creation of better employment opportunities for the Canadian people, the promotion of a high rate of economic growth, the strengthening of Canada's balance of international payments and the maintenance of stability in prices. New budget measures will be introduced to provide further solutions to long-term problems.

My Ministers will re-introduce the resolutions submitted in the last Budget which had as its central purpose the encouragement of economic growth. This will include the production incentive provided to manufacturing and processing companies by cancelling one-half of the tax on the first $50,000 of taxable income arising from increased sales and one-quarter of the increased tax on any additional income arising from increased sales. It will also include the measure to grant to individuals and companies the right to charge petroleum drilling and exploration expenses against income from oil and gas production, and to permit certain expenditures made to acquire oil and gas rights to be deductible for tax purposes. The measure to allow a special tax credit in respect of provincial logging taxes will also be re-introduced in order to remove discrimination in the taxation of logging operations. Iron mining companies will be added to the list of companies which are exempt from the special tax on income earned in Canada by branches of non-resident corporations. The measure will also be re-introduced to increase by $50 per year the income tax deductions allowed for children.

My Government intends to press forward in co-operation with Canadian industry to secure a greater and more rapid application of science to industrial production. You will be asked to approve the new tax incentive announced in the last Budget for corporations undertaking increased expenditures on scientific research in Canada. Dramatic evidence of successful co-operation between Canadian science and industry has been given this week in the opening of Canada's first nuclear power generating station.

Canada's prosperity and growth must ultimately rest in large measure upon its exports. To achieve adequate export levels it will be necessary to increase further Canada's capacity to produce competitively and its ability to sell in export markets. The Government's industrial programmes are directed toward these ends. Its commercial policy negotiations have the objective of opening additional markets to Canadian producers in fair exchange for opportunities for others to sell in Canada. The vigorous campaign of export trade promotion will be expanded to enlarge the sales of Canadian products in foreign markets. You will be asked to provide the funds necessary for this increasing trade promotion work. Amendments to the Export Credits Insurance Act will also be placed before you, to double the insurance liability which the Corporation may assume and to improve the arrangements for long-term financing.

You will be asked to authorize the establishment of an Atlantic Development Board to advise on measures and projects that will promote the economic development of the Atlantic region of Canada.

Amendments will be requested in the Industrial Development Bank Act to enlarge still further this Bank's important role in national development.

The prosperity of agriculture remains essential to the well-being of the entire Canadian economy. Canada is blessed this year with very large crops of good quality, and export markets for Canadian agricultural products have been greatly enlarged.

My Ministers recognize that livestock is occupying a position of increasing importance in Canadian agriculture. They propose that a programme be instituted to ensure the availability of storage facilities and continuity of supplies of feed grain to match the expanding requirements for livestock production, particularly in the areas of British Columbia and Eastern Canada where supplies of feed grain are normally deficient.

The programme of rehabilitation and development of agricultural lands is proceeding actively and you will be asked to provide funds for it.

Legislation will be proposed to enlarge the funds of the Farm Credit Corporation, and allow greater flexibility in their use.

The need for training in agriculture and the present facilities have also been under review and as a sequel to these studies, a national conference on agricultural training is to be convened this fall.

The development and use of Canada's resources of energy must be a central feature of the programme for national economic growth. The twenty-fourth Parliament has laid the groundwork for this in the National Energy Board Act and in other measures.

It is hoped that arrangements will soon be completed that will make it possible to submit for your approval the Columbia River Treaty and the legislation required in Parliament to implement it.

The national oil policy introduced by the Government two years ago has brought about a gratifying increase in the production and sale of Canadian oil.

Studies will be continued, in co-operation with the provinces, in relation to the long distance high voltage transmission of electrical power and the development of potential sources of hydro-electric power with a view to the ultimate establishment of a national power grid, which will facilitate the orderly utilization of the hydro-electric potential of Canada in the interests of expanding Canadian development and progress. Discussions are in progress with the Government of Manitoba in respect to studies of the Nelson River system.

My Ministers have come to the conclusion that large scale, long-term contracts for the export of power surplus to Canada's needs, present and potential, should now be encouraged in order to expedite the development of major power projects in Canada which are too large to be supported by the domestic market. Such exports can also strengthen our balance of payments.

In recognition of the important role of transportation in the Canadian economy, you will be asked to approve measures to give effect to recommendations of the Royal Commission on Transportation which has now completed its comprehensive analysis of the Canadian railway problem. These changes are intended to remove the need for general horizontal freight rate increases which have borne so heavily in the past upon certain areas and groups of producers. You will also be asked to provide for an extension of the Freight Rates Reduction Act and the other interim railway subsidies provided by appropriation.

Amendments will be proposed to the Canada Shipping Act to preserve for Canadian vessels the coasting trade in the St. Lawrence and Great Lakes area. Funds will be requested to implement the programme of shipbuilding subsidies announced some months ago.

You will be asked to provide for the continuation of the Winter Works Programme to assist municipalities in meeting seasonal unemployment.

Far-reaching changes are taking place in manpower requirements in Canadian industries as a result of automation, other technological developments and world competitive pressures. A measure will be placed before you designed to assist employers, workers and their organizations in meeting the impact of industrial change.

My Government will also place before you legislation to provide safeguards against accidents and hazards in works and undertakings within the Federal fields of jurisdiction.

The Committee inquiring into matters relating to the Unemployment Insurance Fund is expected to submit its report this autumn. Following consideration of this report, appropriate measures will be placed before you.

In order to permit the introduction of a national system of contributory old age pensions with disability and survivor benefits, an amendment to the British North America Act is required. The governments of all provinces except Quebec and Newfoundland have concurred in such an amendment. My Government is prepared to recommend to you the approval of an Address to Her Majesty requesting the amendment when the concurrence of these remaining provinces has been received.

As pension plans have become ever more widely extended in Canadian business, it has been increasingly recognized that measures are essential to protect the interests of those affected and in particular to ensure that the benefits earned are portable when workers move from job to job. Provincial legislation would be required for this purpose in most cases, and several provinces are considering proposals of this nature. My Government will be prepared to place before you complementary legislation to deal with industries under Federal jurisdiction when adequate progress has been made by provinces.

A measure will be placed before you to authorize the establishment of a national council of welfare to make more fully effective the action of both Federal and Provincial Governments in this field.

You will be asked to approve amendments to the Food and Drugs Act to provide for more effective control of the distribution and sale of drugs in the interests of the public health.

You will be asked to enact legislation to provide for the establishment of a National Medical Research Council.

Legislation will be re-introduced to authorize the payment by Federal Crown Corporations of certain Provincial commodity taxes and fees.

Legislation will be proposed on university grants which will include authorization of payment of the higher grants announced some months ago and will provide alternative arrangements where supplementary provincial grants are made in lieu of Federal grants.

A Bill will be introduced to authorize a revision and codification of all Federal Statutes.

Bills will be introduced to amend the Judges Act, the Aeronautics Act, the Bankruptcy Act, the Coal Production Assistance Act and the Currency, Mint and Exchange Fund Act, and other statutes.

Members of the House of Commons,

You will be asked to appropriate the funds required to carry on the services and payments approved by Parliament.

You will be asked to abolish closure and to re-establish the special committee on procedure of the House.

Honourable Members of the Senate,

Members of the Commons,

I pray that God in His wisdom may enlighten you in the discharge of your duty towards our country.

STATEMENT BY MR. SPEAKER

I should like to draw the attention of the House to the fact that all the subsequent bills are non-government bills. As they will be appearing before me for the first time, I am not sure of either their bulk or their content, and I do not know whether or not they meet the requirements of the rules of the House in so far as their essentials are concerned. I must therefore enter a caveat by pointing out that, between now and the time they come up for second reading, such bills will be scrutinized and if there is any essential defect the House will be acquainted with that fact when the particular measure appears before us for second reading.

I realize that at the present time the House itself is not in a position to judge whether a bill is acceptable or not, because it is seeing it for the first time. An Order for first reading is merely a direction that a bill be printed so that honourable members may see it.

RULING BY MR. SPEAKER

In regard to this question, on October 4 the honourable Member for Port Arthur (Mr. Fisher), raised a point as to whether it was properly worded. We need not go into what was said on that date except to say that the conclusion was reached that I would reserve opinion as to the validity of the assertion of the honourable Member for Port Arthur, and what might be done to remove a question, which might be found offensive or improper, from the Order Paper because at that time I did not feel it was within the powers of the Speaker to order that a question either remain on the Order Paper or be removed from it.

It would appear that the honourable Member for Port Arthur raised his question of order on two points, first that part 3 of the question was an assertion of an alleged fact or of opinion, and secondly that the assertion might offend the usages, traditions and proprieties of this House. A quick glance at the Notice Paper would indicate that many of the questions therein include assertions of fact, stated either implicitly or explicitly. Standing Order 39, paragraph (1), clearly provides for the use of facts in any question. There may be some doubt as to any objections on the grounds of the statement of an alleged fact. However, there then comes the question of opinion and there is a very fine line of division here. In any event, even if it were opinion and therefore contrary to the Orders of this House, I think it is quite readily understood and has been a practice that a question could be redrafted in a minor way, or in a major way if need be, so as to conform; therefore the question need not fall to the ground, necessarily, and be removed from the Order Paper on that ground.

But to me there is a much more fundamental point involved here. That is the second objection raised by the honourable Member, as to whether this question offends the proprieties or the traditions of this House since it deals with a question of political persuasions, principles or philosophy of a public servant. It would appear that none of the authorities, namely Bourinot, Beauchesne or May deals specifically with such a question, nor by diligent search by the Speaker or his officers has it been possible to find a definite ruling by any Speaker in regard thereto. But I find that in the absence of any known precedent for such a question, and having regard to the principle that a person's political convictions, persuasions or philosophy is a private matter which ordinarily is outside the administrative responsibility of the government or of any governmental corporation or body, and to the further principle that such political convictions, principles, persuasions or philosophy of any public servant is not a question of public concern or of official knowledge unless and until that person participates actively and publicly in a political organization, therefore it is my opinion that the substance of part 3 of Question No. 73 is not in line with the usages and traditions of this House.

I would refer honourable Members to page 313 of Bourinot's Fourth Edition, where it is stated as follows: "If an irregularity should escape the attention of the Clerks at the Table, the Speaker will point it out before the question is called, and the Member is then generally permitted to put the question when he has struck out any objectionable words."

Beauchesne's Fourth Edition, citation 172, is also applicable but I do not think it is necessary at this stage to read it.

I may also raise this point later this day when certain other questions may come before the House. It is my ruling that part 3 of Question No. 73 should be deleted, and the remainder of the question may be answered as the Honourable Minister may deem fit.

RULING BY MR. SPEAKER

I wish to thank honourable Members for having advanced arguments in this connection. First of all, in order to dispose of the argument raised by the honourable Member for Winnipeg North Centre (Mr. Knowles) in citing a ruling by His Honour Speaker Michener on May 12, 1959. I would draw to the honourable Member's attention a certain distinction which the Speaker at that time indicated was very germane to the nature of the amendment then before him.

I read from page 427 of the 1959 Journals—the second last paragraph on the page. The first sentence reads: "It is a resolution declaratory of an adverse principle to the main principle of the bill". This is not applicable in my estimation in this instance. That would therefore dispose of the precedent as not being applicable.

Considering this question generally, it is competent for a Member on second reading of a bill who desires to place on record any special reasons for not agreeing to the second reading of a bill to move as an amendment to the question a resolution declaratory of some principle adverse to, or differing from the principles, policy or provisions of the bill, or expressing opinions as to any circumstances connected with its introduction or prosecution or otherwise opposed to its progress. I suggest that this amendment is not one adverse to a principle of the bill—but is one otherwise opposed to its progress or seeking information on its progress. Those words are generally contained in Beauchesne's Fourth Edition, citation 382. I would point out to honourable

Members that it is a fundamental principle that no matter ought to be raised in a debate on a question which would be irrelevant if moved as an amendment, and that an amendment cannot be used for importing arguments which would be irrelevant to the main question. In this regard I would refer honourable Members to May's Sixteenth Edition at page 421. Again, citing May, at page 531, I quote: "The principle of relevancy in an amendment governs every such motion. The amendment must 'strictly relate to the bill which the House, by its order, has resolved upon considering'."

The proposed amendment clearly states that it has reference to section 23 of the main Act.

No provision can be found in the bill before the House which is related to that section. Accordingly, if the provisions of section 23 of the Act can be brought before the House by virtue of an amendment, I would submit that other sections of the main Act could also be brought forward in the same fashion. Therefore, I would submit that the amendment does not oppose any principle or provision of the bill; in other words, the subject-matter of the proposal is a substantive motion and an entirely new question unrelated to the bill before us. In the present instance I do not consider this amendment relevant to the bill being discussed; it is rather relevant to the Act itself. But at the moment I respectfully submit that we are not discussing the Act; we are discussing Bill C-63.

It is my opinion that the rule of relevancy is completely disregarded. If every bill that was discussed by this House was subject to amendments of this type which could stipulate that the bill did not contain enough and should contain something else, then there would be no relevancy at all.

In this connection I would refer honourable Members to a ruling by Mr. Speaker Macdonald, reported at page 237 of the Journals under the date of November 14, 1949. He said: "On the second reading of an amending bill... it is the principle of the amending bill, and not the principle of the Act to be amended, which is the 'business under consideration'. The discussion must therefore relate exclusively to the principle of the amending bill." May I add that here, where we are referring to "discussion", we also include "amendments", which must relate exclusively to the principle of the amending bill.

In addition, if I may cite a ruling of Mr. Speaker Michener on December 13, 1957, while the House was considering a motion for the second reading of Bill No. 232, An Act to amend the Income Tax Act, the then Speaker, as reported at page 2313 of Hansard, said: "This is an Act to amend the Income Tax Act and it is relevant, as I understand the precedents, to discuss the sections of the Income Tax Act which are to be amended by this bill but not to review the Act as a whole."

With the greatest respect to the mover and seconder of this amendment, I am of the opinion that that would be the purpose of their amendment and that it is irrelevant, and I so rule.

After further debate, the question being put on the main motion,—That Bill C-63, An Act to amend the Export Credits Insurance Act, be now read a second time; it was agreed to.

Accordingly, the said bill was read the second time, considered in Committee of the Whole, and progress having been made and reported, the Committee obtained leave to consider it again at the next sitting of the House.

Returns and Reports Deposited with the Clerk of the House

The following papers having been deposited with the Clerk of the House were laid upon the Table pursuant to Standing Order 40, namely:

By Mr. Hees, a Member of the Queen's Privy Council,—Order in Council P.C. 1962-1457, dated October 12, 1962, authorizing, under section 21 of the said Act, a contract of insurance by the Export Credits Insurance Corporation for the sale by Canadair Limited, Montreal, of CL-44D-4 aircraft plus spare parts to Seaboard World Airlines, Inc., New York, N.Y., U.S.A., pursuant to section 21B of the Export Credits Insurance Act, chapter 105, R.S.C., 1952, as amended 1960-61.

PRAYERS.

STATEMENT BY MR. SPEAKER

Mr. SPEAKER: Before calling the Orders of the Day, I would crave the indulgence of honourable Members in order to permit me to make a statement which I indicated on Friday last I would make today, namely a statement of what I consider to be the guideposts on the subject of questions generally and on oral questions on Orders of the Day in particular. I would immediately point out that this is in no way a ruling but rather a statement. I find that over the past 20 years or more each of my predecessors as Speaker has taken this step I am now taking at least once, and some of them a number of times, during his term of office.

The problem of oral questions on Orders of the Day is not a new one and honourable Members will see some of the reasons why as we examine the problem. As there are a number of honourable Members who were Members of this House in 1940, perhaps I could quote from some observations by the then Prime Minister, Mr. Mackenzie King, as they appear in Hansard for July 12, 1940, commencing at page 1569. I quote: "It is not, as I understand the rules, the right of honourable Members to interrogate the Ministry upon all kinds of matters without advance notice and without following, wherever possible, the other rules that are laid down for the seeking and obtaining of information. The rules of the House do provide several means whereby information may be obtained, and of course the rule most generally availed of is the one with respect to handing questions in to the Clerk, or having placed on the Order Paper Notices of Motions for the Production of Papers. By our rules the asking of questions of the Ministry on the Orders of the Day is limited to a certain class of questions, those which cannot be answered effectively in the other way."

He further indicated he felt the Speaker of the day should make a statement in this regard. Mr. Speaker Glen on July 15, 1940, as reported on page 1596 of Hansard, went into the question at some length and, after reading Standing Order 44, comparable to our Standing Order 39 of today, had this to say: "If the Standing Order was strictly interpreted, it is obvious that a very large proportion of the oral questions asked before Orders of the Day are called would be out of order. In fact, Members have not exercised sufficiently their rights under Standing Order 44, but have too frequently endeavoured to seek information on the Orders of the Day being called."

He went on further to say on pages 1596 and 1597: "To sum up: There is only one Standing Order governing questions seeking information from Ministers of the Crown. It is Standing Order 44, which provides that such questions may be marked with an asterisk if oral answers are required. Forty-eight hours' notice must be given of these questions, which must be laid on the Table of the House before six o'clock and printed in the Votes and Proceedings. On the Orders of the Day being called, Members may ask Ministers to explain certain matters in accordance with the practice expounded by Bourinot and sanctioned by usage. It is not done under the authority of a Standing Order, and therefore such questions may be either permitted or disallowed by the Speaker, who must judge each case on its merits."

And further: "It seems to me manifestly unfair to compel Ministers to answer questions on important matters without an opportunity of consulting their chief officers; and it would be arbitrary to deprive Private Members of the privilege of putting certain questions of immediate urgency on the Orders of the Day being called. The principle on which the practice has been tolerated in past years should be respected, that is, the reading of long series of questions elaborately prepared is not to be allowed on the Orders of the Day being called."

Again, on March 15, 1943, as reported at pages 1233 and 1234 of Hansard, Mr. Speaker Glen had this to say: "As long as our Standing Orders are unchanged, the only questions permitted on the Orders of the Day being called must be confined to very urgent matters, personal explanations, inaccurate reports of speeches delivered in the House, denial of charges, dilatoriness in obtaining returns, or other similar matters closely connected with the routine business of the House. These questions must be brief and must not be prefaced by any argument. Standing Order 44 gives Members ample opportunity to place on the Order Paper any number of questions they desire with respect to public affairs. Reading telegrams, letters or extracts from newspapers as an opening to a question when the Orders of the Day are called is an abuse of the rules of the House. It is not good parliamentary practice to communicate written allegations to the House and then to ask Ministers either to confirm or to deny them. It is the Member's duty to ascertain the truth of any statement before he brings it to the attention of Parliament. This has been decided long ago in the United Kingdom House of Commons. On June 14, 1882, Mr. Speaker Brand, in preventing a Member from reading a telegram from a newspaper and founding a question on it, pointed out the extreme inconvenience of founding questions on every telegram in every newspaper. 'I am bound to say,' he added, 'that it does appear to me that before questions of such gravity are put, an honourable Member should take some measures to ascertain the truth of the telegram.' This quotation is from Denison's and Brand's Decisions, page 230."

Mr. Speaker Glen concluded as follows: "I feel it is my duty to explain to the House the procedure with regard to questions, and I hope that in applying it I shall have the co-operation of all Members of the House."

On September 11, 1945, page 66 of Hansard, Mr. Speaker Fauteux had this to say briefly after citing Beauchesne's Third Edition: "Honourable Members will notice that the rules say that questions are allowed by courtesy in connection with the business of the House or with very urgent and important matters of public concern. I would like to call for the co-operation of every Member and ask them not to put oral questions when they are not very urgent. It would be preferable for the dispatch of business that questions be placed on the Order Paper."

Coming to more recent years, on May 29, 1951, as reported in Hansard, page 3494, Mr. Speaker Macdonald referred to the procedure regarding the asking of questions and he referred honourable Members to Standing Order 44. I quote: "It has nevertheless been the practice in our House to allow a certain number of oral questions, and it is not my purpose to discourage Members from asking questions of the proper type, as I feel that these questions create a more lively interest in the business of the House. These oral questions are asked when the Orders of the Day are called, and are frequently asked without notice. I would, however, emphasize that these oral questions should be asked only in connection with very urgent and important matters of public concern, and only if it would not be in the public interest to place them on the Order Paper and receive answers in accordance with the method provided for in the Standing Orders. They should always be brief. No debate is permitted, and the reply should be as concise as possible. The questions should not be prefaced by the reading of letters, telegrams, newspaper extracts or preambles of any kind. See Beauchesne's Third Edition, paragraph 297, 298."

On March 16, 1956, Mr. Speaker Beaudoin, as reported on page 2206 to 2210 of Hansard and the Journals of the House of Commons, Volume C, at pages 299 and those following, went into the whole question most exhaustively. He reviewed the statements of the previous Speakers, including some of those which I have given to honourable Members and then cited from other sources of authority such as Beauchesne, Bourinot, and May as well as articles published by the Hansard Society. Without appearing at all to lecture honourable Members in a pedagogic way, I would suggest that this particular statement by Mr. Speaker Beaudoin may be made prescribed reading for Members, as well as others who would comment upon the proceedings of this House. The statement came relatively shortly after Standing Orders had been changed and adopted by the House in 1955 following many years of study. There are many honourable Members on both sides of this House who were Members of the House of Commons in 1955 and who participated in the revision of the Standing Orders and, with the adoption of the Standing Orders, I may presume them to have concurred therein.

I am resisting a grave temptation to quote most extensively from this lengthy statement and I trust that honourable Members will bear with me while I make certain references to it. In some respects the situation today may resemble that which prevailed some six years ago: "I want to tell honourable Members that I think that between their conception of what should be asked at question time and mine there is now such a wide difference that I am afraid we are not pulling in the same direction. I think it is well for me to establish the position which I consider is the one which is now in force. I will not quote all these citations but I will refer honourable Members to the following ones—".

Then he enumerates them from Beauchesne. He refers them to Bourinot's Fourth Edition and goes on and cites particularly No. 140 in Beauchesne's Third Edition, which is as follows: "A question which could be inserted on the Order Paper is not allowed on the Orders of the Day being called."

Incidentally, citation 140 is now 173, subparagraph (2).

"Then citation 297: A certain number of oral questions are permitted in practice by Members, without notice, before the Orders of the Day are called; but these are merely allowed by courtesy in connection with the business of the House or with very urgent and important matters of public concern. They are always brief, no debate being permitted, and the replies are as concise as possible. The Minister interrogated may reply at once or may direct that the usual notice be given. Such questions are governed by the same rules of order as questions of which notice has been given."

Then Mr. Speaker Beaudoin comments: "In other words, if a question could not be inserted on the Order Paper, a Member cannot ask it before the Orders of the Day are called."

There follows some detailed discussion and interpretation of various citations in Beauchesne, which I do not think it is necessary to deal with at this time, but in case this statement should be misunderstood in regard to citation 203 of the Third Edition of Beauchesne, which is now citation 178 of the Fourth Edition, it must be noted that Mr. Speaker Beaudoin subsequently corrected himself on May 7, 1956, as reported in volume 4 of Hansard at pages 3619 and 3620. Mr. Speaker Beaudoin then continued, at the foot of page 2207 of Hansard: "I hope that honourable Members will read carefully all the citations I have given and I feel confident that they will do so knowing their interest in the matter. They will see that not only has it been the opinion of Prime Ministers but also of Leaders of the Opposition when they have occupied one side or the other during their careers, that questions before the Orders of the Day are called should be limited to questions of an urgent and important character and should be asked on the Orders of the Day only if they could not be placed on the Order Paper without some prejudice being suffered."

"I said earlier that honourable Members are moving in a direction which is contrary to that which I understand to be the right one because as honourable Members know the rules are not being changed by the Speaker. If honourable Members wish that the rules be changed, there is a proper method to be adopted and that is to have a Committee on Rules, have the matter decided, and have a report made to the House. Were I to receive such a report, I can assure you that I would try to interpret the new rules as faithfully as I could. As it is, honourable Members are trying to move in the direction of having a question period which is almost similar to that which exists in the United Kingdom without adopting the proper safeguards and without giving more authority to the Speaker to intervene whenever he feels that a question is not in order and also without adopting the method of giving notice which is in vogue in the United Kingdom."

He then went on to compare the practice which prevails in the United Kingdom, which is quite instructive. I cannot resist reference to a citation made by Mr. Speaker Beaudoin from a commentary on "Question Time in Canada" appearing in an article of the Hansard Society, where the author has this to say: "In Canada, the complexity of the question procedure and its lack of definitiveness usually results in an annual altercation on the floor of the House."

I think honourable Members who have been here for some time may be witness to that. Then he says: "Habitually, Mr. Speaker makes a short statement—"

And, as Mr. Speaker Beaudoin does, I apologize for making mine quite so long: "—during the early stages of the Parliamentary Session to remind the Members of the differences between the two procedures to be outlined below. The Speaker tries to discourage the use of too many questions being asked on the Orders of the Day being called."

Even closer to the present day, I would with respect refer to two statements made by my immediate predecessor, Mr. Speaker Michener, on October 17, 1957, at page 63 of Hansard (Vol. I, 1957-58) in which the then Speaker referred honourable Members directly to the lengthy statement by his immediate predecessor, Mr. Speaker Beaudoin, and it is my opinion that Mr. Speaker Michener adopted the words of Mr. Speaker Beaudoin.

Again on February 26, 1959, at page 1393 of Hansard, Mr. Speaker Michener on an occasion similar to this, prior to calling Orders of the Day, made a statement as to the interpretation of the practice of this House on oral questions for the edification of honourable Members, and without wishing to enter into debate with anyone within or without this House who may feel that I am endeavouring to introduce changes in the rules or interpretations of the rules concerning oral questions, may I quote the principles applicable to oral questions as enumerated briefly by Mr. Speaker Michener: "1. The question should seek information or press for action on a matter relating to public affairs of such immediate urgency that it would be inappropriate to put it on the Order Paper.

"2. Both the question and the answer should be concise, factual and free of opinion and argument or observations which might lead to debate.

"3. An explanation can be sought regarding the intention of the government but not an explanation of opinion upon matters of policy. That is citation 178 of Beauchesne's Fourth Edition.

"4. Other detailed limitations, some 40 in number, are set out in citation 171 of Beauchesne's Fourth Edition, which was cited yesterday, and apply to oral questions as well as to written questions.

"5. Supplementary questions are matters of grace.

"6. The Minister is entitled to notice, and answers cannot be insisted on nor is it regular to comment on the refusal to answer an oral question.

"I may say this principle relates to oral questions and perhaps not to questions on the Order Paper."

I apologize to honourable Members for the length of this statement which, if I had yielded to temptation, could have been much longer; but I felt it was necessary to trace an historical pattern to events which have taken place within the actual memory of a goodly number of honourable Members in this House. Unfortunately human memory may sometimes fail or impressions may get blurred of events even not too distant in the past, but the Journals of this House and the records of debates indicate faithfully what was actually said. I leave it to honourable Members to judge my submission that there is an easily discernible line of interpretation over the years, but one must refresh one's memory from time to time to clearly set out and see that line of interpretation.

I do not propose to enter into a lengthy philosophical dissertation on the role of the Speaker, his duties have been described much better by others on many occasions. I would subscribe wholeheartedly to those definitions. I believe the Speaker should be the impartial arbiter of the rules as they exist for him and for the House in the Standing Orders, in the decisions of his predecessors, and in the decisions of this House aided by the persuasive authority of the commentaries such as Beauchesne, Bourinot, May, and others. The Speaker is the servant of the House in so far as it makes rules for the conduct of its affairs, and I conceive it would be a grave dereliction of duty for the Speaker to put these rules aside consciously in response to either whim or expediency. But if the rules exist for the Speaker to interpret, they also exist for honourable Members to observe. It is not the sole duty of the Speaker to preserve order, or the traditions and dignity of this House, or to protect Members from unconscionable actions; I would submit that there is an equal duty on all Members to do likewise. May I express the situation in another way which may be more graphic? The rule book does not exist only for the hockey referee, or the football referee, or the umpire in baseball, nor are these officials the only ones who should know the book of rules; the players themselves, if they are going to do their jobs properly, must not only know the rules well but must observe them.

I do not conceive the role of Speaker to be that of a police constable on a beat in a more notorious section of a large metropolitan city whose principal task is to be on constant alert against wrong doings and where the conduct of most of the residents may be suspect. Nor do I conceive it to be that of a mere teller of names, a sort of gatekeeper for honourable Members who may wish to ask questions or engage in debate governed by the rules of this House to the extent only that the whim or the expediency of the moment may dictate. I recognize that these are extreme positions.

As I have indicated previously, and as has been indicated by previous Speakers, I have my rules as embodied in Standing Orders, decisions of this House, decisions of previous Speakers, and the persuasive authority of the commentaries. Honourable Members expect me to enforce these rules, yet as was said by Mr. Speaker Beaudoin: "It would appear that honourable members are pulling in the direction of the practice which exists in the United Kingdom under different rules." If the present rules do not satisfy the honourable Members of this House, then I have no objection if they wish to go in different directions, but I cannot agree that I can go along with them while following the rules which are given to me. If the rules should be changed, then I respectfully suggest that honourable Members know what procedure to take under the rules as they now exist.

May I add that many of the questions being posed on Orders of the Day would be unacceptable as to form for printing on the Notice Paper. In a large percentage of such cases, Members would be requested to rephrase or redraft their notices before they could be accepted under the terms of Standing Order 39, section (1).

In conclusion, briefly stated, it would appear that it has been the consensus of opinion of all Speakers that questions asked on Orders of the Day should comply with two basic requirements:

1. The form of those questions is governed by the terms of Standing Order 39 section (1) which provides in part that in putting a question no argument or opinion is to be offered, nor any facts stated except so far as may be necessary to explain the question.

2. Such questions should be offered only in connection with urgent and important matters of public concern when, because of immediacy, the regular procedure relating to questions cannot be utilized for the purpose of eliciting the desired information or for bringing a matter of urgency to the attention of the Ministry.

The terms of section (1) of Standing Order 39 are comparatively clear, and if the Chair could depend on the co-operation from all sides of the House not only as to the nature of questions but also as to the nature of replies, there would be little trouble, in my humble opinion, in controlling questions on Orders of the Day.

I would respectfully submit this statement for the consideration of honourable Members.

Mr. Graftey, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Finance, laid before the House,—Composite Conformed Copy of five separate Purchase Agreements, each dated September 24, 1962, providing for Sale of $250,000,000 Aggregate Principal Amount of Twenty-five Year External 5% Bonds due October 15, 1987. (Reference: Answer to part 2 of Question No. 38 by Mr. Gordon, Hansard page 495, October 15, 1962).

Bill C-63, An Act to amend the Export Credits Insurance Act, was again considered in Committee of the Whole;

And the House continuing in Committee;

Objection being taken in Committee to the decision of the Chairman (Mr. Chown) on a point of order, and an appeal being made to the House;

Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and the Chairman of the Committee made the following Report:—

“In Committee of the Whole, when clause 3 of Bill C-63, An Act to amend the Export Credits Insurance Act, was being considered, the honourable Member for Danforth (Mr. Scott) moved in amendment the following:

“That subclause (1) of clause (3) be amended by adding to subsection (2) of section 21A, as that subsection is thereby substituted, the following paragraph:

‘(f) for the purpose of assisting in the development of other countries, lend money to the government of any other country, or its agent, upon such terms as to interest, if any, and repayment and other terms and conditions as will best fulfil the true intent and spirit of this paragraph.’

“I ruled the amendment out of order as being irrelevant in that it purported to extend the fundamental provisions of the bill and also that it probably infringed the financial initiative of the Crown.

“Whereupon the honourable Member for Danforth appealed to the House from the ruling of the Chair.”

The question being put by Mr. Speaker: “Shall the ruling of the Chairman be confirmed?”—It was decided in the affirmative on the following division:

And the honourable Member for Port Arthur (Mr. Fisher) having posed a question in relation thereto;

Mr. Speaker ruled the question out of order on the ground that it was not the type of question that could be asked when Orders of the Day are called.

From this Ruling the honourable Member for Port Arthur appealed to the House.

And, the Members having been called in;

Mr. Speaker reported that the question was an appeal to the House from the above Ruling.

And the question being put by Mr. Speaker: "Shall the decision of the Chair be sustained?"—It was decided in the affirmative on the following division:

RULING BY MR. SPEAKER

MR. SPEAKER: With the greatest deference to the honourable Member for Winnipeg North Centre, I do not know whether he is able to read the mind of the Minister of Finance at this time but there is nothing which indicates to me either by a direct statement from the Minister of Finance or otherwise that he or any other Minister intends to make a Budget Presentation in the accepted sense of the term. That being the case, how can the Chair avoid the direction of the peremptory portion of Standing Order 58, the opening portion?

That is the difficulty the Chair faces at the moment. There is no latitude given to the Chair but for this one exception cited in the subsection, concerning which I have no knowledge, no indication, and certainly no statement from the Minister of Finance. Thus, with all due respect to the honourable Member, I am in the same position, I submit, as he is. Until the Minister of Finance says he is going to make a Budget Presentation, I have no alternative but to follow the rules and leave the Chair, and that is what I propose to do.

And debate continuing on the point of order;

MR. SPEAKER: On this point it is not that I am going to make a ruling at this moment and declare that any further discussion is superfluous, but I would like to direct the attention of honourable Members to the point, that what we have here is a question of order and it is not the question of the merits or demerits of whether there should be discussion or not. The question is whether, under this procedure that is proposed at the moment, the Speaker shall leave the Chair or not.

That is the narrow point of order, and I certainly would not be the one to say whether there is ample or insufficient opportunity to discuss the matters referred to. That is not the proposition at this moment. The ruling is in the light of the Standing Order, and I would earnestly submit to honourable Members that they should direct their attention to that point.

I have allowed pretty free discussion on both sides on that particular question, but I think we should come back to the interpretation of the Order as it is listed on the Order Paper—the effect of Standing Order 58—and also what are the requirements to go into a Budget Presentation as it affects the Speaker.

And debate continuing on the point of order;

MR. SPEAKER: As I said, it is not my purpose to deal with the merits of whether or not there shall be discussion. That is quite extraneous to the point of order. I would have hoped that honourable Members would have held themselves to that point.

We are faced here with Order No. 27 on the Order Paper, "House again in Committee of Ways and Means". We then deal with Standing Order 58, which, upon the House going into Committee of Ways and Means, says "Mr.

Speaker shall leave"—"shall leave"; this is mandatory, peremptory on the Chair—"the Chair without question put". There is then the proviso about the Budget Presentation.

I would draw to the attention of honourable Members the fact that on a Budget Presentation there is a motion made by the Minister of Finance "That the Speaker do now leave the Chair". No such motion is before this House. Further, I would submit to honourable Members that Mr. Speaker has no authority to compel any member of the government to propose a motion. If the Minister of Finance does not propose the motion, "That the Speaker do now leave the Chair", nor do any of his colleagues, then we are not into what I can only term a Budget Presentation, because while honourable Members on all sides of the House might have their own opinion as to what may be coming, the Chair cannot anticipate what is coming. Therefore, I cannot rule that there is to follow a Budget Presentation.

In the light of that, therefore, I rule that the first portion of Standing Order 58 will apply and I have no alternative but to leave the Chair; and that is what I propose to do.

Accordingly, the House resolved itself again into Committee of Ways and Means;

And the House continuing in Committee;

At 5.00 o'clock p.m., Mr. Speaker took the Chair.

[Private Members' Business was called pursuant to Standing Order 15(3)]

(Notices of Motions)

Item No. 3 having been called for the first time was allowed to stand at the request of the government.

Mr. Stefanson, seconded by Mr. Forbes, moved,—That the government should consider the expediency of amending the Canada Elections Act to provide for the establishment of a permanent list of electors, with biannual revisions thereof, as now exists for instance in the United Kingdom and in Australia, in lieu of the present method of preparing and revising lists of electors at each general election, so as to permit shortening the period of time between the issue of the writs of elections and the date the said writs are made returnable.—(Notice of Motion No. 4).

And debate arising thereon;

The hour for Private Members' Business expired.

The Committee of Ways and Means resumed, and progress having been made and reported, the Committee obtained leave to sit again later this day.

PRAYERS.

Thirty-one petitions for Private Bills were presented in accordance with Standing Order 70(1).

Mr. Speaker communicated to the House the following letter:

GOVERNMENT HOUSE
OTTAWA

25th October, 1962.

Sir,

I have the honour to inform you that the Honourable Patrick Kerwin, P.C., Chief Justice of Canada, in his capacity as Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General, will proceed to the Senate Chamber today, the 25th October at 5.45 p.m., for the purpose of giving Royal Assent to a certain bill.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

A. G. CHERRIER,

Assistant Secretary to the Governor General.

The Honourable,
The Speaker of the House of Commons.

A Message was received from the Senate informing this House that the Senate had passed the following bill to which the concurrence of this House is desired:

Bill S-5, An Act respecting The Eastern Trust Company.—Mr. Morris.

The said bill was deemed to have been read the first time and ordered for a second reading at the next sitting of the House pursuant to Standing Order 103(2).

Mr. Starr, seconded by Mr. O'Hurley, by leave of the House, introduced Bill C-70, An Act to provide for the Safety of Persons Employed in Federal Works, Undertakings and Businesses, which was read the first time and ordered for a second reading at the next sitting of the House.

Mr. Starr, seconded by Mr. O'Hurley, moved,—That the House do go into Committee of the Whole at its next sitting to consider the following proposed resolution which has been recommended to the House by His Excellency:—

That it is expedient to introduce a measure respecting industrial change and manpower adjustment; to provide for the organization and maintenance of a Manpower Consultation Service; to provide also for the payment of assessment incentives for carrying out manpower adjustment programs; to provide further for the entering into agreements providing for the payment by Canada respecting a labour mobility incentive; and to establish a council called the "Advisory Council on Industrial Change and Manpower Adjustment" and to provide for the Chairman's remuneration and for certain expenses of the members of the Council.

Resolved,—That the House do go into Committee of the Whole at its next sitting to consider the said proposed resolution.

The House resolved itself again into Committee of Ways and Means;

And the House continuing in Committee;

At 5.00 o'clock p.m., Mr. Speaker took the Chair.

[Private Members' Business was called pursuant to Standing Order 15(3)]

[Notices of Motions (Papers)]

By unanimous consent, at the request of the government, it was ordered that Item No. 16 under this heading in the name of Mr. Martin (Essex East) be allowed to stand and retain its precedence until Thursday, November 8, 1962, notwithstanding the provisions of Standing Order 19(1).

(Public Bills)

The Order being read for the second reading of Bill C-11, An Act to amend the Trans-Canada Highway Act (Canada Highways);

Mr. Howard, seconded by Mr. Prittie, moved,—That the said bill be now read a second time.

Whereupon the Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Public Works (Mr. McCleave) raised a point of order to the effect that, as the bill contained a money provision, it was not open to any Private Member to present such a bill.

And debate arising on the point of order;

Mr. Speaker ruled that the point of order was well taken and that, as the bill could only be introduced upon the recommendation of the Crown and after a resolution had been adopted in a Committee of the Whole, the bill was not in order.

From this Ruling the honourable Member for Skeena (Mr. Howard) appealed to the House.

And the Members having been called in;

Mr. Speaker reported that the question was an appeal to the House from the above Ruling.

And the question being put by Mr. Speaker; "Shall the decision of the Chair be sustained?"—It was decided in the affirmative on the following division:

OF CANADA

OTTAWA, THURSDAY, 1st NOVEMBER, 1962.

---

2.30 o'clock p.m.

PRAYERS.

Two petitions for Private Bills were presented in accordance with Standing Order 70(1).

The Honourable Member for Laurier (Mr. Chevrier), having drawn the attention of the House to a letter which appeared in this morning's issue of Le Devoir;

And the said newspaper having been laid upon the Table, an article therein was read by the Clerk of the House, which is as follows:

(Translation)

BILINGUALISM

BERNARD DUMONT COMPLAINS OF THE ATTITUDE OF THE SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS, MR. M. LAMBERT

Mr. Bernard Dumont, Social Credit Member for the riding of Bellechasse, raised a protest against the "gag" used by the Speaker of the House of Commons, Mr. Marcel Lambert, to prevent questions on bilingualism from being asked.

Mr. Dumont sent the following letter to the Speaker of the House:

"My question is directed to the Minister of National Defence.

"Does the Department of National Defence still have the simultaneous translation system which was used in a room of the Parliament Building for the Universal Postal Congress?

"Could that system be installed in a room in the West Block so that the meetings of the Committee on Agriculture and other Committees could be made bilingual?"

To the copy of that letter he sent to Le Devoir, Mr. Dumont added this:

"An English person might be blamed for banning questions on simultaneous translation, but it is unforgivable in the case of a Speaker whose name is Lambert and who is aware of minorities' difficulties since he was born in Edmonton. The same question was asked on October 18, 1957, and at page 135 of Hansard, Speaker Michener permitted a discussion on the matter; but today, because the problem is being discussed by a Social Crediter, the Speaker rules the question out of order, probably because he is anti-Social Credit.

That is very serious since it is an insult to French Canadians who are asking for the installation of simultaneous translation equipment used at the Universal Postal Congress and which the Department of National Defence has in its possession.

So, once again, the French Canadians' rights are encroached upon and the 92,000 farmers earning less than $1,200 a year will not have an opportunity to state their case since everything will be carried out in English.

Newspapers were right when they said that we should have had a Speaker from Quebec to represent us.

Whereupon Mr. Churchill, seconded by Mr. Balcer, moved,—That the article appearing in the issue of the newspaper Le Devoir of Thursday 1st November 1962, under the heading "LE BILINGUISME" and the words therein attributed to Mr. Bernard Dumont, Member of Parliament for the constituency of Bellechasse, alleged to have been contained in a letter or letters written by the said Member, be referred to the Standing Committee on Privileges and Elections for consideration and report.

And the question being put on the said motion, it was agreed to.

The Order being read for the second reading of Bill C-71, An Act to amend the Farm Credit Act;

Mr. Hamilton, seconded by Mr. Fulton, moved,—That the said bill be now read a second time.

And debate arising thereon;

A Message was received from the Senate informing this House that the Senate had passed Bill C-63, An Act to amend the Export Credits Insurance Act, without amendment.

Mr. Speaker communicated to the House the following letter:

And debate arising thereon; the said debate was interrupted.

A Message was received from the Honourable Patrick Kerwin, Chief Justice of Canada, in his capacity as Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General, desiring the immediate attendance of the House in the Senate Chamber.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF NEWFOUNDLAND

IN THE MATTER OF THE DOMINION CONTROVERTED ELECTIONS ACT

AND

IN THE MATTER OF THE PETITION OF
WILLIAM J. BROWNE, CANDIDATE FOR
THE RIDING OF ST. JOHN'S WEST,
NEWFOUNDLAND

PETITIONER

RICHARD CASHIN

RESPONDENT

October 10, 1962.

JUDGMENT OF FURLONG, C. J.

In these proceedings, which come to us by way of a Petition under the Dominion Controverted Elections Act, the Court is asked to declare that the election held in the Riding of St. John's West be void.

The petitioner is the Hon. W. J. Browne who was a candidate at the said election, and the respondent is Richard Cashin who has been declared to have been elected.

The election was held on June 18th, 1962, and the official count was conducted by the Returning Officer on July 3rd and 4th, 1962. The petitioner being dissatisfied with the count, application was made by him for a judicial recount, as is provided for by the Canada Elections Act, and this recount was conducted by His Honour, Judge W. L. Whelan, judge of the District Court of St. John's West. The result of the recount showed that the petitioner, Mr. Browne had a majority of 185 votes, excluding the votes of Canadian Forces electors, but as the respondent, Mr. Cashin received a majority of 209 votes of these Canadian Forces electors, he was declared elected by a majority of 24 votes, the final result of the voting being William J. Browne 12,626, Richard Cashin 12,650 and Stanley M. Ross 281. Due notice of the return in this riding was first published in the Canada Gazette on July 23rd, 1962.

The petitioner says that 424 votes were cast by voters who qualified pursuant to the provisions of "The Canadian Forces Voting Rules" which is Schedule II of the Canada Elections Act. He further alleges that of this number 34 votes were cast by persons not entitled by law to vote in the Riding of St. John's West, by reason of their non-residence within its boundaries, and that 2 other votes should not have been counted as there was not sufficient evidence given by them to determine whether or not they possessed the necessary residential qualification.

These allegations can be transformed into the numerical result that Mr. Cashin was declared elected with a majority of 24 votes, but that hidden somewhere in the secrecy of the ballot are 36 votes which should not have been cast at all. As there is no means of ascertaining for whom these 36 votes were cast it simply means that it is not possible to say whether or not any candidate received a majority of the votes of electors legally entitled to vote in the constituency. This is the proposition which the petitioner asks us to consider.

In his Answer to the Petition, the respondent simply denies that any of the votes cast by Canadian Forces electors were cast by persons not entitled to vote in the said constituency, and puts the Petitioner on his proof of the allegation.

Particulars have been given by the petitioner of the names and residences of those persons who, he says, were not entitled to vote. In addition to the names and numbers this list gives two important further items of information, namely; the address of ordinary residence as given by the elector on Form 7, at the time of voting; and his address of ordinary residence as declared on Form 16 or 17, and on file at the Department of National Defence in Ottawa. The references to numbered forms refer to the Rules, as I shall, for the sake of convenience, call The Canadian Forces Voting Rules, which is a Schedule to the Canada Elections Act, and is thus part and parcel of the Act, and to be read with it.

Now the Act prescribes that a Canadian Forces elector, as defined in paragraph 21 of the Rules, is entitled to vote at a general election only under the procedure set forth in those Rules, or if he has not voted under that procedure, as a civilian voter at the place of his ordinary residence as shown on the statement made by him under paragraph 25 of the Rules.

So that provision having been made by the Act for the men in the Services (and their wives) to be able to perform their civic duty of voting at a Parliamentary election, we are obliged to consult the Rules to see how they may discharge this duty, or exercise this right, to vote.

The qualification of Canadian Forces electors is set out in paragraph:—

- "21. (1) Every person, man or woman, who has attained the full age of twenty-one years and who is a Canadian citizen or other British subject, shall be deemed to be a Canadian Forces elector and entitled to vote, at a general election, under the procedure set forth in these Rules, while he or she;
- (a) is a member of the regular forces of the Canadian Forces;
  - (b) is a member of the reserve forces of the Canadian Forces and is on full-time training or service, or on active service, or;
  - (c) is a member of the active services forces of the Canadian Forces."

An exception to the age of the voter is set forth, so that persons under that age who served on active service on or subsequent to September 9th, 1950, may vote.

Paragraph 22 provides that a wife of such an elector shall likewise be deemed to be a Canadian Forces elector, and entitled to vote at a general election under the procedure set forth in the Rules.

The significant phrase in the above rule is "under the procedure set forth in these Rules." The elementary requirement before being entitled to vote is to declare the ordinary residence of a voter, and this is provided for in paragraph 24, thus:—

- "24. (1) Notwithstanding paragraph 21, a Canadian Forces elector, as defined in that paragraph, is not entitled to vote under the procedure set forth on these Rules, unless he or she;
- (a) completes a statement of ordinary residence as provided in paragraph 25 or sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 36, and;
  - (b) specifies in a declaration in Form 7 the name of the place of his or her ordinary residence in Canada as shown by the elector on the statement referred to in clause (a)."

Sub-paragraph (2) makes similar provision for the wives of such electors, and the paragraph continues:

"(3) A Canadian Forces elector, as defined in paragraph 21 shall apply his or her vote only to the electoral district in which is situated his or her ordinary place of residence as shown on the statement made by such elector, under paragraph 25 or sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 36, and a Canadian Forces elector as defined in paragraph 22, shall apply her vote to the electoral district in which is situated the ordinary place of residence of her husband as shown by him on such statement."

It is provided in paragraph 25 that every person, other than a wife, shall forthwith upon his enrollment complete a statement of his ordinary residence in Form 16; or if he is a reservist on full-time service on Form 17. This statement is completed in duplicate and is kept on file at the appropriate Service Headquarters of the elector, the duplicate being retained at his unit headquarters with his other service documents. If an elector changes his residence provision is made in the Rules for a statement of this change to be completed at appropriate times; and similarly if a man has failed to complete a statement of residence on enrollment the omission may be made good.

If a Canadian Forces elector is at the place of his ordinary residence as shown on Form 16 or 17, on polling day he may vote as a civilian elector, provided his name, if his ordinary place of residence is in an urban district, is on the voters list.

All these preceding paragraphs deal with eligibility of the elector and to his entitlement to vote, to those things, in fact, which take place before the elector casts his ballot. At this particular moment we are not concerned with procedural matters; with the manner in which the ballot is actually obtained, marked by the elector, dispatched by him to the Special Returning Officer, checked by that official and the scrutineers, sorted into its proper electoral district, opened, and counted. These are the mechanics of the process of voting, and they must be followed in every detail if the result of ascertaining the views of the majority of the electors is to be determined properly. I have said deliberately that at this particular moment we are not concerned with the mechanics, as the claim has been made by the petitioner that persons who had not the right to vote in the Riding of St. John's West did in fact do so. We have to enquire and see if they did so; how they did so is perhaps a complementary inquiry the pursuit of which may assist us in determining the major inquiry, did they do so?

Now in order to establish his entitlement to vote the elector (by which I shortly refer to the Canadian Forces elector) has to furnish certain particulars about himself when he presents himself to the deputy returning officer, and this information he fills in on Form 7, which is printed on the back of a large brown envelope, which with its contents is posted by the elector himself to the Special Returning Officer for the electoral area in which he has voted. To complete the picture I should add that there are four of those areas, one at Halifax, one at Ottawa, one at Edmonton, and one in London for those who vote outside of Canada.

However, to get back to the information which the elector has to fill in on his brown envelope. The usual details as to his name, rank and number must be there; a declaration that he is a Canadian citizen or other British subject of the full age of twenty-one years (subject to the exception provided in the rules for those under this age who, having been on active service under that age have been discharged); that he has not voted before at the current election; and that his ordinary place of residence, as shown on the statement on Form 16 or 17 is whatever it is. It is convenient here to note some variation in the particulars required to be given as to ordinary place of residence in paragraph 36; the paragraph says the elector may state the name of the electoral district and province on Form 7; while Form 7 itself imperatively says "(Here insert name of electoral district)". A positive direction is given on the Form and a permissive direction is set out in the Rule; but Form 16 only requires the name of the town or other place together with a street address if any. If it had been regarded as mandatory that an elector himself set out the name of his riding, some of the votes about which we are at present inquiring should have been eliminated before they were counted because of the deficiency of this information.

Having provided all this information the elector is then supplied with a blank ballot upon which he writes the name of the candidate for whom he wants to vote. The ballot, as I have already briefly described, is placed in a plain, white envelope, and sealed, and then put into the brown envelope and posted to the Special Returning Officer whose name and address is printed on it.

All the unopened brown envelopes when they are received during the days between the voting and the closing of the poll, are examined to see if Form 7 has been completed, and sorted into bundles or pigeon-holes for each of the two hundred and sixty-four electoral districts in Canada. Each envelope is supposed to be examined to make sure that the information on Form 7 is sufficient to establish the place of ordinary residence. And at this point it is important to look at paragraph 73 (1), because in the present election at least two electors did not provide sufficient information to determine their residence and consequently we have no means of knowing whether or not they were entitled to vote in this Riding.

"73. (1) An outer envelope which does not bear the signatures of both the Canadian Forces elector and the deputy returning officer concerned (except in the cases referred to in paragraphs 39 and 41), or the signatures of the Veteran elector and the two deputy special returning officers concerned (except in the cases referred to in paragraphs 61 and 62), or upon which a sufficient description of the place of ordinary residence of such elector does not appear, shall be laid aside, unopened; the special returning officer shall endorse upon each such outer envelope the reason why it was laid aside, and such endorsement shall be initialled by at least two scrutineers; and the ballot paper contained in such outer envelope shall be deemed to be a spoiled ballot."

Then the poll is closed, or rather the special period which has been assigned to service votes, the ballots are counted for their separate electoral districts, having first been checked by the special returning officer and the scrutineers, the name of the electoral district having been written by the scrutineers in the lower left hand corner of the back, and initialled by both scrutineers. I quote paragraph 69 (2):—

"69. (2) Whenever an outer envelope has been sorted to its electoral district, the name of such electoral district shall be written by the scrutineers in the lower left hand corner of the back of the outer envelope and both scrutineers shall affix their initials thereto."

Only five of the thirty-six outer envelopes shown to us and put in evidence are so endorsed, which clearly shows a want of attention on the part of the special returning officers, and a failure on their part properly to instruct the scrutineers and others working under them.

The whole result of our inquiries, and of our physical examination of the exhibits discloses an unsatisfactory state of affairs. However I propose not to devote any more at this time to an inquiry into the 'how' unentitled persons vote but to the primary inquiry which I have referred to earlier on.

Particulars which have been given by the petitioner consequent on an order of Mr. Justice Dunfield on September 4th, 1962 give the names and particulars of residence of all the persons who he alleges should not have voted in the Riding. These names are divided into service categories and are serially numbered, and in discussing them I shall identify them by these numbers. The information as to the ordinary place of residence as shown on Form 7 on file at Ottawa has not been challenged, and we can accept it as conclusive. The petitioner himself, being thoroughly familiar with the constituency, and the Returning Officer for St. John's West, Mr. W. J. Stoyles, have given evidence that on the information provided 34 of those persons were not entitled to vote in the Riding; two other persons who voted did not give sufficient information so as to be able to say if they were so entitled.

Now without examining in any detail the list, it is most important to bear in mind that the votes of those thirty-six persons are unidentifiable; there is no possibility that any one can say whether they voted for one candidate or another. The result is that it is not possible to separate the votes of those properly entitled to vote from those who were not. The total number of ballots cast comprise those of both classes of persons, electors and non-electors. From the evidence which we have heard I have concluded thirty-four of those named by the petitioner were not entitled under the Rules to vote in the electoral district of St. John's West because their declared ordinary places of residence were outside that constituency, and that the votes of two other persons should not have been counted as the outer envelopes did not contain a sufficient description of the place of ordinary residence of the voter, and paragraphs 36 (2) and 73 (1) provide that such envelope be not opened.

Thus we see that thirty-six people voted who were not entitled to vote, that the votes of these thirty-six could have affected the result of the election, and as we have no way of separating these votes and excluding them from the total, the result of the election is indeterminate, the decision of the majority of the electors not being clearly shown.

The prayer of the petitioner before us is to declare the election void. There has been some discussion between counsel as to our powers in these matters and we have been referred to certain cases. It seems to me, and I must so hold, that this power is quite simply set out in S. 56 of the Dominion Controverted Elections Act which says“ .....the trial judges shall determine .....whether the election was void .....” This is unmistakable statutory power as to the decisions which we may make upon an election petition.

Having read the petition and examined the various election documents which have been exhibited to us, and having heard the evidence, I conclude that the election should be declared void, and a report of this decision will be sent to the Speaker of the House of Commons.

I do not think I should make any order as to costs; the respondent opposed the petition simply to the extent that the matter was brought to proof and should not have to bear the petitioner's costs.

AND

IN THE MATTER OF THE PETITION OF
WILLIAM J. BROWNE, CANDIDATE FOR
THE RIDING OF ST. JOHN'S WEST,
NEWFOUNDLAND

PETITIONER

RICHARD CASHIN
October 10, 1962

RESPONDENT

JUDGMENT OF WINTER, J.

I am in full accord with the learned Chief Justice in his decision that this election must be declared void and in the reasons he has given for reaching that conclusion. If I had felt that I should confine myself strictly to the simple and clearcut issue raised by the petition and answer, I should have followed the usual practice where there is complete agreement between Election Judges, and have associated myself with him in a joint judgment. But I do not consider that I am obliged so to confine myself. This is in several respects an extraordinary petition, and some of its implications so far transcend in importance the mere determination of the validity of this particular election that I should account myself neglectful of my duty if I did not draw attention to them. And that can best and most properly be done in a separate judgment. Such of the observations I have to make as are not necessary to the decision itself can only be regarded as obiter dicta, and for them I accept full responsibility.

I have called this an extraordinary petition. I will add that it should have been quite unnecessary. The improper acceptance and counting of some thirty-four votes in a total of more than twenty-five thousand has compelled us to declare void an election which was otherwise duly and properly conducted, an election which actually did, in sober truth and reality, result in the election, in the simple sense of the word, of one of the two leading candidates (the third can be ignored), the petitioner and respondent respectively. But no-one can tell which of them it was. The probabilities favour Mr. Cashin, for, if we assume that the 34 votes which must be subtracted were divided between them in the same proportion as were the whole number of Service votes, it will be seen that Mr. Cashin has a majority of almost exactly 7 votes. But probability is not certainty, and the division might by some quirk of chance have been quite different. It is therefore impossible for the returning officer to certify that any candidate has been elected, and as Election Judges we have no choice but to declare the election void.

As a result of this, the time, effort and money spent upon the election may fairly be said to have been wasted. A new election is necessitated, involving a similar expenditure. Both candidates are deserving of sympathy, since it is clear that the election was invalidated through no fault of theirs. It can also be extended to the voters of St. John's West, whichever party it may be to which they belong, whose efforts have come to naught. Finally, though I doubt if this item will cause much concern, the people at large, not merely of St. John's West or of this Province, but of Canada, have a cause of complaint in that their parliament is, even if only temporarily, not constituted as it was intended it should be; a seat is made vacant which should not have been.

Other undesirable results could no doubt be mentioned, but these should be sufficient to depict a regrettable situation and state of affairs. In the view which I take of the case, I would substitute for that mild epithet the stronger one, deplorable. And I would add another one, inexcusable. But, whether or not I succeed in justifying the use of such terms, it will surely be agreed that two questions at least present themselves to the minds of all intelligent and interested persons. The first is this: who or what, is or are, to blame for such a result and situation? If the blame lies in more than one place, how should it be apportioned? This deals with the disease. The second turns to the cure and asks, is there a remedy? How far, if at all, can a repetition in future elections of the same mischance be prevented?

As to the first, the human actors who might be held responsible are clearly indicated. They are: first, the Forces electors who cast the 34 ballots and made the incorrect declarations on the backs of the outside envelopes; second, the respective deputy returning officers before whom the declarations were signed; and, third, the special returning officers and their assistants who superintended the receiving, sorting and counting of the votes in the several voting territories concerned.

Regarding the voters themselves, I have only this comment to make at this stage. I must emphasize that the subject matter of this analysis is not any particular and individual irregularity that may have occurred, but simply and solely the complete avoidance and nullification of the election. For that, I for my part acquit the voters of any responsibility. Their votes should not have been received at all, and most certainly should not have been counted; but there the part played by them stops. They should have lost their votes, and for that, even if their mis-statements were in any instances venial and understandable, they have only themselves to blame. No-one else is.

As to the deputy returning officers who took the declarations and handed the envelopes to the voters, I would myself exonerate them entirely. I can find nothing in paragraphs 36 to 40 of The Canadian Forces Voting Rules, describing the duties of such officers, which says, or even suggests, that they are in any sense scrutineers. Even in the few cases among the 34 declarations and envelopes where there is a patent, or even flagrant, incompatibility between the residence named and the electoral district, I cannot see that this was any concern of that office. If an envelope bore that character, it would not lose it in its passage through the mail, and it would, or should, be apparent to those in the special returning office whose duty it was to conduct the real scrutiny.

That brings the inquiry to the last place and group of persons concerned. It would also seem to be the last to be investigated, since it was there, in each particular case, that the harm must have been done, that the votes were received and counted that should have been rejected. We are indeed here getting very near to the root of the trouble, but not quite; near enough, however, to see where the root really lies. And here again, as in the other two places, I myself would return a verdict of not guilty if the charge were the specific one that the special returning officers, their assistants or the scrutineers were mainly, or even to any substantial extent, responsible for the failure of this election to produce any certain result.

To see whether this is the correct view or not we need only imagine ourselves in the place of any special returning officer and consider the conditions under which he and his assistants had to discharge their very responsible duties. Paragraph 5 of the Rules creates three "voting territories" inside Canada, with headquarters at Ottawa, Halifax and Edmonton respectively, each presided over by a special returning officer. It also provides for the establishment if necessary of a voting territory for Canadian Forces electors stationed outside of Canada. I shall confine myself to the first three, for what I have to say will serve, mutatis mutandis, for the outside territory also. Each special returning officer is given assistants; and paragraphs 9 and 10 provide for at least six scrutineers, and more if necessary, at each headquarters. This, I think, sufficiently describes the personnel set-up, and I have now to look at the conditions under which they worked.

There were, on June 18th last, some 264 electoral districts in Canada. It seems obvious that every Service man who voted must have had an 'ordinary residence' in some one of these 264. Those in charge of the voting must therefore have had to keep in mind the possibility, for which they would have to be prepared in advance, that some outer envelope produced before them might bear the name of some city, town, village or other place in Canada of which none of them had even heard. It would also bear, right under the name of the residence, the name of the electoral district. Both these items appear on the back of the outer envelope which the Forces elector has to sign. They are part of a printed reproduction there of Form 7, with blanks to be filled in by him giving his name, rank and number. He also declares that he is a Canadian citizen or other British subject, that he has attained the age of twenty-one years and that he has not previously voted at the pending general election.

This is all the information that the elector is required to give in his declaration. What, then, are the duties of the special returning officer or his chief assistant with regard to it? Some of these are routine and formal; those that are material to us are contained in sub-paragraphs (d) and (e) of paragraph 70 of the Rules, which read:—

- “70. On receipt of voter envelopes containing ballot papers marked by Canadian Forces electors and Veteran electors, the special returning officer or his chief assistant shall .....
- (d) direct the scrutineers to ascertain, from the details given on the back of each outer envelope, the correct electoral district containing the place of ordinary residence of the Canadian Forces elector, or Veteran elector, and to sort such outer envelope thereto; and
  - (e) make sure that each such outer envelope is sorted to its proper electoral district, and has been duly marked and initialled by the scrutineers.”

On this point, the ascertainment of the correct electoral district, the fundamental and vital importance of which seems, as I hope to show, to have escaped those who drafted the Rules, I can find no further enlightenment in the Rules themselves, nothing to show how the scrutineers should go about the performance of a task which, from the very nature of the circumstances in which they were placed, must inevitably have presented great difficulties.

This seems to me the appropriate place, before I go further, to advert to a striking feature of the hearing before us which may well mark it as unique in the record of election petitions. Neither the petitioner nor the respondent found it necessary to call as a witness any of the special returning officers, assistants, scrutineers or others who participated in the handling and treatment of the 34 votes mentioned in the petition. The parties are not to be criticised for not submitting evidence if the issue could be determined without it. But this fact, while it facilitated the proceedings and helped clarify the issue, had one unfortunate effect. It would have greatly assisted the Court if it had been heard at first hand certain details, which can now only be guessed at, of the ways in which the “correct” or “proper”, electoral districts were in fact ascertained. In the absence of such evidence I am compelled to ask some questions which I might conceivably not have asked, and to do so with a feeling of diffidence and of being subject to correction by someone more conversant with the procedure actually followed.

This, however, may be called a relatively minor matter. What cannot be so called is the stark and startling truth that it was in every case the elector himself who supplied the evidence, which only needed what was little more than formal confirmation by Mr. Browne and the returning officer for St. John's West, that showed him to be not qualified to vote in that district. How did such an event come about? In the answer which I now submit we find, I am confident, the greater part, if not the whole, of the cause of the trouble.

If paragraph 70 (d) which I have quoted is read, as it should be, together with paragraph 36 (1) and Form 7, a serious inconsistency is revealed. Paragraph 36 (1), which deals with the declaration to be made by a Forces elector, after setting forth the matters that must be contained, has these words: "the name of the electoral district and of the province in which such place of ordinary residence is situated may be stated in such declaration in Form No. 7." We have to note the use of the word "may". When, however, we look at Form No. 7 as set out in the Rules we find these words, underneath a dotted line to be filled in, "Here insert name of electoral district." And this is followed by a similar line with the words, "Here insert name of province."

This is the inconsistency I have mentioned, and that it is a serious one is made clear when, finally, we look at paragraph 70 (d), above quoted. 36 (1) has given the elector a choice between two alternatives: to omit the name of the district or to insert it. Form 7, of which alone he would be made aware in this connection and which he would actually have to sign, is clearly in the imperative: it says "Insert". He is given no choice, and he naturally obeys. The practical effect of this must surely be that the name of the district will appear on every declaration, that is to say, on every outer envelope.

Let us suppose, however, that in some cases it does not appear: unquestionably, in spite of Form 7, the voter is entitled to omit it if he wishes. If some such case is brought to the notice of the returning officer, what should he do about it? To take an actual example from the 34 envelopes before us he will see "St. Phillip's, Newfoundland". Let us invent a couple, and say he sees "Tupperville, New Brunswick" or "Black Rock, Alberta". Presumably the returning officer will have in mind, and turn to, Rule 70 (d). He is at once confronted by the same difficulty which I will confess I find in deciding just what the language used there really means. One would have thought that the Rules, after indicating in paragraph 36 (1) that the declaration might be in either of two forms, would have here provided for the proper treatment of both cases respectively. This plainly is not done. Can it be said that 70 (d) sufficiently takes care of both? I hardly think so. The word "ascertain" seems apt only to the case where the district is not named. It is true that the phrase "correct electoral district" does suggest that those who framed the Rules envisaged the case of an elector having, mistakenly or otherwise, named a wrong district, and intended that the scrutineers should accordingly examine every envelope to test its accuracy in that respect. But, if that were so, the paragraph should, and could, have said this expressly and clearly. Since it does not do so, the scrutineers can hardly be blamed if they accepted the word of the elector himself and assumed that he had "ascertained" his own proper district. But this is not the case I am immediately considering, which is where no district at all is named on the envelope. It is in such connections as this that first hand evidence would have been so helpful. Without it I can only say that the task confronting the returning officer and scrutineers appears to me a formidable one, to say the least. Paragraph 15 mentions the provision of books of key maps and books of excerpts from the Canadian Postal Guide, but says nothing more about them that I can find. If with this apparatus alone to help them the scrutineers are able in any such case to ascertain the proper district, either they are unusually sagacious and diligent or the Postal Guides are one hundred per cent exhaustive and accurate. In any case we must assume that the residence is located and the district thereby fixed. If not, if it cannot be found at all, I can see no course for the returning officer to follow but to mark the envelope as containing a rejected ballot and set it aside. If it is located, obviously the only thing to do is to send it to the district indicated. And, it might be added, secretly hope for the best.

However, this seems a most unlikely case to arise. If the 34 envelopes we have examined are typical—and there seems no good reason why they should not be—the electors must, in virtually every case, have named the district as well as the place of residence. And here I can see the returning officer possibly placed in a dilemma the chance of which occurring is so obvious that it should have been the first consideration in the minds of those who framed the Rules. Genuine and unintentional mistakes occur in every election and should be guarded against in every reasonable way. Now, the returning officer is cautioned to see to it, in the case of every envelope, that it is sorted to the proper electoral district. Which then is the proper electoral district when the elector's residence is shown to be in one district and he has himself named another? Plainly, the former. To put it generally and symbolically, let us suppose a service voter's residence is found to be in district A and the name given by him to be district B. The proper district, the only one in which he is entitled to vote, is A. Must the scrutineers sort the envelopes to district A knowing that the odds are overwhelmingly in favour of his having written the name on his ballot paper of a candidate in district B? Surely not. It is virtually certain that, if this is done, some candidate will receive a vote that does not belong to him; also—what is vastly more important—that, once the ballot is put in the ballot box, irremediable harm may have been done. Its identity will be lost and it will be impossible to remove it, with the result that it will inevitably be counted.

The only proper disposition of such an outer envelope is surely that it should be set aside as containing a rejected ballot paper. And I should have thought that the Rules would provide, in every case where reasonable doubt is raised on this score by the details on the outer envelope, some procedure for removing the doubt if possible before the envelope is opened for counting: if any doubt still remains then, the ballot should be rejected. Yet paragraphs 73 and 74, treating the disposition of outer envelopes that are not satisfactory, deal only with incomplete envelopes, those received too late and the case of an elector having voted twice. They are silent on this, which would seem the most likely as well as the most serious case of all: where there is a manifest discrepancy and lack of agreement between the real district, as fixed by the place of residence, and that named by the voter.

More might be said on this subject, the actual voting and counting procedure laid down by the Rules; but I think the points to which I have drawn attention are enough at least to raise considerable doubt whether those participating, as far as these votes are concerned, were as much to blame as the procedure itself, as much as the whole system under which Canadian Forces vote in a parliamentary election. I feel that this judgment would be incomplete if I did not carry the analysis a little further and into that wider realm of the system as a whole. What I have said so far as an ad hoc character and deals only with factors existing in this particular instance. Merely to remedy any faults found therein would not be enough.

In approaching that task I feel to a greater degree the diffidence I have above described. I am sensible of the fact that the Rules which I am examining have already and repeatedly been examined by others better qualified, through greater experience and knowledge of practical considerations than I, or any other outsider, can be to decide whether or not they sufficiently meet any particular situation or problem. Where some Rule may on the face of it appear faulty or questionable, an explanation and justification may well be found in some fact or circumstance of which the critic is ignorant or has only an imperfect knowledge. I shall therefore endeavour to confine my own criticism as far as possible to what might be called general principles, which are abstract in their nature. Happily, it will be found that these crystallise down into very small compass.

Quite the most important of these principles are those applied to the safeguarding of the secrecy of the ballot, the necessity for which, in any democratic society, calls for no explanation. But the assumption upon which rules for this safeguarding are based must not be forgotten, though it often is. That is, that the vote in question has been a proper, valid and effective one. Where that is not the case, where for one reason or another the ballot is a bad one, simple logic moves in the opposite direction. Not merely does the voter in such case not deserve to remain anonymous but there may be several good reasons why his identity should be discovered, and even, it might be, disclosed.

Both these, superficially conflicting, ends are met in all free states by much the same kind of device, which long experience has shown to work satisfactorily. It assures the secrecy of a vote in all cases, but, where in any one case a compelling reason arises, the ballot paper can be identified and traced to the voter. This is done by the use of the register, or voters list, the ballot paper proper and the counterfoil, combined in a certain way. The several concomitants in the process are set out clearly in the Canada Elections Act where it treats of the normal voting by civilians. But in the Schedule containing the rules for service voting (on effect a statute within a statute) we find a departure so astonishing as to be almost incredible. If the ballot paper used by civilian voter and illustrated in forms 35, 37 and 38 of the Act is compared with the specimen in form 10 of the Forces Rules, it will at once be seen that the former bears a number in the ballot which is repeated on the counterfoil, whereas the latter bears no number at all, and there is no counterfoil. The service ballot is completely unidentifiable. I have for my own part carefully searched the Rules for an explanation of this startling difference, but can find none. The only one that I can conceive is that those who framed the Rules, and the Parliaments who approved them, thought that service men deserved a greater measure of protection, if that is the right word, than civilians. No thought seems to have been given to the possibility that any service vote should be wrongly cast, or to the effect which a bad and untraceable vote might have upon thousands of others properly cast and counted. It is with this latter situation that we are confronted, and I have already indicated how devastating the effect has been in this instance. One can be forgiven for wondering in how many other districts across Canada the same result has followed but has not been brought to light merely because no inquiry has been made.

This defect, if my view of this feature is correct and it can be so called, is easily the worst that can be found in the system. If it did not exist, faults in the earlier stages of the voting such as I have above touched upon would be cured, or at least would be curable. The chief danger there would still remain, that the fault should not be discovered in time. That might well have been the case here if there had not been a recount. There is no voters list or, as it is called in England, register of electors in the case of service men and women; and the declaration made by the voter in the outer envelope takes its place. Where civilian electors are concerned the voters list is readily accessible to a candidate and his agents, and it is where it ought to be, in the district he is contesting. Further, it is, or should be, carefully revised and kept up to date, and the chances are reduced almost to a minimum of errors creeping in. This is specially true of the matter that has caused all the trouble in this particular election, the place of residence of the voter. It is far different with service voters. They are all over the place, and their residences will only appear, and be scrutinized, in a voting headquarters far distant in most cases from the one place where alone that scrutiny can be properly made, the district itself. It must follow that few candidates, if any, can have anything but a vague idea about the service vote in his district or the qualifications of those voting. Only a recount, it would seem, can supply that information.

I mention this feature for the special reason that it provokes what is perhaps the most disquieting thought of all, the possibility of deliberate and successful wrongdoing. The most astute and unscrupulous civilian voter would hardly dare to make a knowingly false statement about his place of residence. The penalties are severe and he would have little chance of pulling it off. But the temptation might be very great to a service voter to see if he could not shift his vote from the proper candidate, who might not need it, to another who in his opinion did. If the case at bar is any criterion, the chances would be all in his favour of the vote being received and counted; and, if any enquiry should happen to be made, he would be well protected by this anonymity of the ballot.

There are other aspects of the system which, if not outright faults, would seem to indicate weaknesses, but no purpose would be served by mention of them here. While a judge may properly draw attention to such things, and is encouraged to do so to a certain extent in election cases, and while he may suggest the remedy as well, the latter function belongs in other hands. But in some clear instances the trouble itself may suggest the cure; no harm can be done, and some good may be, if this is pointed out and clarified. I think this petition is such an instance and make no apology for carrying this analysis one step further.

It is plain that a member of the Forces stands in a position different from that of the stay at home civilian. Different treatment is therefore required, but need it be carried as far as it is? The only real distinction between the two affects the first steps only in the voting procedure; once those are completed there is no good reason why both votes should not be treated in the same way and by the same machinery. And so it may be asked whether the elaborate set-up of four or more voting territories is really necessary. It may have been so some years back, before the advent of air mail. Today, when it may be said that an envelope can reach Canada from almost any place in the world in little more than a week, a consideration like this, which is after all only a matter of convenience, seems to lose most of its weight. I can see no good reason why the envelope filled in by the service voter and containing his vote could not be sent by the deputy returning officer before whom it is completed directly to the district named on it. The envelope itself could be the same as that now used, except that the address would not be printed on the front but filled in there and then. If for some reason it could not then be examined and the vote counted in the same way and by the same persons as the civilian votes, it would be a small matter to create a special returning office as is now done. I can myself again see no reason why the efficient machinery already set up and at its disposal could not be used. If this case, of St. John's West, is a fair example, I can say of it without hesitation that all the 34 envelopes produced before us would have been rejected in a matter of minutes in any counting done in St. John's, and an addition of less than 400 votes to the 25,000 odd that were in fact counted would have entailed very little extra work and time.

This procedure, besides reducing to a minimum the chance of votes being recorded that have been cast by voters outside the district, would also, it would seem, help to eliminate the undesirable feature in the present system of deferring the counting of service votes until after polling day. That, however, is a large topic outside the strict scope of this particular enquiry; there is no causal connection between it and the uncertainty of the final count. I mention it only in passing.

The foregoing observations are, as I said at the beginning, merely ancillary to the issue proper of the petition and not essential to its determination. But, there remains one matter to be considered of which the same cannot be said. It raises a question of the first importance and the only one that has presented any real difficulty. I will add that it is with great reluctance that I have given the answer to it which I proceed to explain.

Much has been said in this judgment about uncertainty. But that is a broad term, and the exact nature of the uncertainty brought about in the case of this election must be kept in mind. The Canadian election law closely resembles the English, and the English reports contain a fair number of cases in which elections have been avoided and declared invalid because the result of the election could not be exactly ascertained. Irregularities occurred which plainly could have affected the result, but there was no means of discovering just how they did effect it. Now this election in St. John's West is not such a case. It is not unlikely that 34 electors would have their votes counted in an English election who had no right to cast them; but, if that were the case, the remedy would be simple and easy. Once it was established that they had voted and that their votes had been declared void, an order would be made for the opening and examination of the ballot papers, the offending votes would be traced and the number of votes given for the respective candidates clearly ascertained. And this without revealing how any particular elector had voted. Such an order would obviously be futile here. It would be impossible to sort, out of the 424 votes cast by service voters, the 34 in question.

But that does not end the matter. iWthout going into the feasibility of it, if the 34 electors were asked to repeat their voting in the election, and did so in the same manner and using the same unidentifiable ballot papers, it would be sufficient. Nobody wants to know for which candidate any elector voted, and that knowledge is unnecessary. All we need to know is how many voted for the petitioner and how many for the respondent. Failing this—and the practical difficulties in the way are obvious—as a last resort the voters could be asked individually how they voted. This is rarely done, but sometimes may be unavoidable. Halsbury mentions a case in which two ballot papers were found to have the same numbers and one of them was marked in such a way as to make it bad. It was impossible to say if this one had been marked by the voter (his vote had been declared bad) and it was decided that both might be shown to him so that he might say which was his.

There might possibly be other ways of getting at the real truth, though I cannot think of any; but, whatever method were used, it is doubtful if the result would be convincing. The voters are widely separated and some may possibly be now unavailable; the figures show that all, or very nearly all, the votes would have to be included to produce a definite result; and the matter has received so much publicity, and the standing of the parties is so well known that there could be no certainty that the result reached was in truth what it would have been if the votes had not been counted. The whole idea of a recount in this connection appears impracticable and we feel that we cannot in fairness adopt or recommend it. There is no course left but to declare the election void.

Mr. Speaker informed the House that, pursuant to section 69 of the Dominion Controverted Elections Act, chapter 87, R.S.C., 1952, he had addressed his Warrant to the Chief Electoral Officer for the issue of a new Writ of Election for the said Electoral District of St. John's West.

Mr. Howe, from the Standing Committee on Railways, Canals and Telegraph Lines, presented the First Report of the said Committee, which was read as follows:

Your Committee recommends:

1. That it be empowered to print from day to day 750 copies in English and 300 copies in French of its Minutes of Proceedings and Evidence, and that Standing Order 66 be suspended in relation thereto;
2. That its quorum be reduced from 20 to 15 Members, and that Standing Order 65(1)(b) be suspended in relation thereto.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Howe, seconded by Mr. Smith (Simcoe North), the said Report was concurred in.

Mr. Aiken, from the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, presented the First Report of the said Committee, which was read as follows:

Your Committee recommends that it be empowered to print such papers and evidence, from day to day, as may be deemed advisable or necessary, and that Standing Order 66 be suspended in relation thereto.

By unanimous consent, on motion of Mr. Aiken, seconded by Mr. Thomas, the said Report was concurred in.

On motion of Mr. Ricard, seconded by Mr. Winkler, it was ordered,—That the name of Mr. Ormiston be substituted for that of Mr. Kennedy on the Standing Committee on Railways, Canals and Telegraph Lines.

Bill C-71, An Act to amend the Farm Credit Act, was again considered in Committee of the Whole, and further progress having been made and reported, the Committee obtained leave to consider it again at the next sitting of the House.

[At 5.00 o'clock p.m., Private Members' Business was called pursuant to Standing Order 15(3)]

[Notices of Motions (Papers)]

Mr. Martin (Essex East), seconded by Mr. MacEachen, moved,—That an humble Address be presented to His Excellency praying that he will cause to be laid before this House copies of correspondence or any documents exchanged between the Prime Minister and the Minister of Finance or any other Minister of the Crown and officers of the Department of Justice or the Privy Council or any other government department or agency on the subject of Surcharge and Imports Order, P.C. 1962-902, dated June 24, 1962, and the amendment to the Surcharge and Imports Order, P.C. 1962-987, dated July 11, 1962, and the Import Control List as amended by P.C. 1962-903, dated June 24, 1962, with particular reference to the legality of such Orders.—(Notice of Motion for the Production of Papers No. 16).

And debate arising thereon;

The hour for Private Members' Business expired.

Mr. Balcer, seconded by Mr. Flemming (Victoria-Carleton), moved,—That a Sessional Committee on Railways, Air Lines and Shipping owned and controlled by the Government be appointed to consider the accounts, estimates and bills relating to the Canadian National Railways, the Canadian National (West Indies) Steamships, and Trans-Canada Air Lines, saving always the powers of the Committee of Supply in relation to the voting of public moneys, and that the said Committee be empowered to send for persons, papers and records, and to report from time to time, and that notwithstanding Standing Order 67 in relation to the limitation of the number of Members, the said Committee shall consist of 26 Members.

And the question being proposed;

INCOME TAX ACT

Resolved,—That it is expedient to introduce a measure to amend the Income Tax Act and to provide among other things:

1. That for the 1962 and subsequent taxation years the amount deductible in computing taxable income in respect of a child qualified for family allowance be increased to $300 and the amount deductible in respect of other dependants be increased to $550 each.

2. That with respect to income earned after March 31, 1962 a corporation whose principal business is manufacturing or processing (not including a corporation whose principal business is shipbuilding, mining, logging or the operation of oil or gas wells) be allowed to deduct from its tax otherwise payable an amount equal to 50 per cent of the tax on the first $50,000, of its taxable income attributable to increased sales and an amount equal to 25 per cent of the tax on the remainder of its taxable income so attributable.

3. That with respect to its first taxation year ending after April 10, 1962 and the next succeeding four taxation years a corporation be permitted to deduct in computing income 150 per cent of the amount by which expenditures of a current and capital nature on scientific research in Canada incurred by it in the year exceed expenditures of a current and capital nature on scientific research in Canada incurred by it in its last taxation year ending on or before April 10, 1962.

4. That for the 1962 to 1966 taxation years both inclusive the deduction from tax allowed to corporations in respect of taxable income earned in a province be increased from 9 per cent to 10 per cent in a prescribed province in which arrangements exist for the replacement of federal grants to universities by additional provincial grants in accordance with the proposed amendments to the Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements Act.

5. That with respect to taxation years commencing in 1962 a taxpayer be allowed a deduction from tax of an amount equal to the lesser of two-thirds of the amount payable for the year to a province as a tax on income from logging operations or  $\frac{2}{3}$  of 10 per cent of the taxpayer's income from logging operations in the province, and the right to deduct in computing income amounts paid to a province as tax on income from logging operations be repealed.

6. That with respect to expenses incurred after April 10, 1962 any corporation be allowed to deduct in computing income the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred by it on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada and the prospecting, exploration and development expenses incurred by it in searching for minerals in Canada not exceeding its income for the year from oil or gas wells in Canada.

7. That with respect to expenses incurred after April 10, 1962 an individual be allowed to deduct in computing income the drilling and exploration expenses, including all general geological and geophysical expenses, incurred by him on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada not exceeding his income for the year from oil or gas wells in Canada.

8. That with respect to acquisitions after April 10, 1962 amounts paid by

- (c) a corporation (other than a corporation that qualifies under (a)), or

9. That with respect to any disposition by a taxpayer after April 10, 1962 of property consisting of a right, licence or privilege to drill for, explore for or take petroleum or natural gas, there shall be included in the income of the taxpayer any amount received by him as consideration for the disposition, except where

- (a) the taxpayer was a person (other than one who would otherwise be required to include that amount in computing his income) who acquired the property on or before April 10, 1962, and who, for the taxation year that included that day, was not one of a class of persons who would be entitled to deduct expenses of drilling or exploring for petroleum or natural gas in computing income,

That the right of a successor corporation to deduct drilling, exploration, prospecting and development expenses incurred by a predecessor corporation from the income of the successor corporation attributable to the production of petroleum or natural gas from wells, or the production of minerals from mines, situated on property acquired from the predecessor corporation shall not be lost by reason of the fact that the successor corporation assumed liabilities of the predecessor corporation.

11. That a joint exploration corporation may renounce an appropriate share of the drilling, exploration, prospecting and development expenses incurred by it after 1956 in searching for oil, gas or minerals in Canada in favour of a shareholder corporation whose principal business is

13. That for the 1962 and subsequent taxation years income earned in Canada by a non-resident corporation whose principal business is mining iron ore in Canada, be exempt from the additional 15 per cent tax imposed by Part IIIA on profits earned in Canada by non-resident corporations.

14. That where an employee who is a member of one deferred profit sharing plan becomes a member of another deferred profit sharing plan the amount to his credit in the first mentioned plan may be transferred to his credit in the second mentioned plan without attracting tax on the amount so transferred.

2. That for purposes of the deduction from aggregate net value allowed for the value of a gift made to a charitable organization in Canada, such an organization shall include not only one that devotes its resources to the making of gifts to other such organizations in Canada, but also one that devotes part or all of its resources to the making of gifts to Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province, a Canadian municipality or a municipal or other public body in Canada performing a function of government.

JOURNALS

HOUSE OF COMMONS

---

OTTAWA, FRIDAY, 16th NOVEMBER, 1962.

---

11.00 o'clock a.m.

PRAYERS.

Mr. Diefenbaker, a Member of the Queen's Privy Council, laid before the House,—Exchange of Correspondence with certain Provinces during the period February 5 to September 19, 1962, concerning the proposed Amendment to Section 94A of the British North America Act in connection with contributory Old Age Pensions.

By unanimous consent, it was ordered that the said correspondence be printed as an Appendix to this day's Hansard.

On motion of Mr. Ricard, seconded by Mr. Winkler, it was ordered,—That the names of Messrs. Benidickson and English be substituted for those of Messrs. Granger and Belzile on the Sessional Committee on Railways, Air Lines and Shipping.

RULING BY MR. SPEAKER

MR. SPEAKER: Before calling the Orders of the Day, I should like to mention a point raised by the Honourable Member for Bonavista-Twillingate (Mr. Pickersgill) on November 1 concerning the matter of replying to a question which had been made an Order for Return. At that time, I indicated I would take the matter under advisement and I indicated also that if anyone, particularly the honourable Member for Winnipeg North Centre (Mr. Knowles), wished to speak to this matter I would hear him. I am prepared to make my ruling, but, as I indicated, if anyone wishes to speak to the point of order that was raised—as a matter of fact, it was raised as a point of privilege—I am quite prepared to hear him.

And debate arising thereon;

Mr. SPEAKER: I have listened to the observations of honourable gentlemen in this regard. First of all, I would preface my remarks by indicating that Standing Order 39(4) does apply. I would particularly underline a point which I think has been missed both by the Honourable Member for Bonavista-Twillingate and the Honourable Member for Winnipeg North Centre. Standing Order 39(4) says: "If a question is of such a nature that, in the opinion of the Minister who is to furnish the reply, such reply should be in the form of a return..."

This is the point which I think honourable Members have missed, that it shall be in the form of a return.

"...and the Minister states that he has no objection to laying such return upon the Table of the House, his statement shall, unless otherwise ordered by the House..."

This refers to the point made by the Honourable Member for Bonavista-Twillingate.

"...be deemed an Order of the House to that effect..."

The "effect" is that it shall be made in the form of a return.

"...and the same shall be entered in the Votes and Proceedings as such."

In other words, the Order of the House is that the Minister's answer shall be in the form of a return. It is not the order that the question shall be answered as it appears; it is merely to supply the information in the form of a return. We know that when a motion is before the House for the production of papers in the form of a return, there is nothing which indicates the precise nature of what shall be included. In the same way, when a Minister, replying to a written or a starred question, says: "Order for Return tabled herewith", there is nothing there which says that every portion of that question shall have been answered. I fully appreciate that the Honourable Member has said that this is a short method of putting a motion and dealing with it.

I would refer honourable Members to Bourinot, page 244 of his fourth edition, under the title "Presentation of Papers", where he states: "Questions put by Members are sometimes made equivalent to a motion for papers under rule 37."

That is now Standing Order 39.

Now we get to the matter of whether an answer should be given to every portion of a question. I face immediately the problem of who is to judge the sufficiency of the answer. It is not open to honourable Members to do so. It is not open to the Chair to determine whether such an answer is sufficient. And regardless of what might have been the particular parts of the question, the answer could be made the most capricious of answers one could imagine. To use the example of "If not, why not?", the Minister could make the most capricious reply which I think could be devised and simply say "Because", and who would be able to judge? Therefore, I think we are belabouring the point here. I can see nothing further or different in this particular instance from an Order for Return tabled herewith, or any other written question answered by a Minister. As I indicated the other day, I felt there had been a suggestion of setting up a double standard in dealing with questions, and that I could not accept because to me there is no one who can judge the sufficiency of an answer.

In so far as whether there has been a defiance or an improper reply, I think the Honourable Member for Bonavista-Twillingate and others have indicated, as has been done by my predecessors, that a grossly or obviously improper answer might found a grievance. There are times when grievances can be aired, and I think that is when the whole matter as has been under discussion could be aired. I do not think this is a matter of privilege; I think it is a matter of grievance. In my estimation there is no such thing as an order that a paragraph of a question shall be answered seriatim; the order is in the form of a return. That would be my ruling on that point.

In so far as the matter of "If not, why not?" and other such questions are concerned, I would suggest that we defer that to some other day next week because honourable Members may wish to prepare for it. I am prepared to raise the matter and to deal with it, because I noticed on the Order Paper there are presently two or three questions which I think, with all due respect, are not proper questions as they raise certain points of order. Therefore, I would prefer to have honourable Members prepare themselves so that we can have a discussion.

Bill C-78, An Act to amend the Income Tax Act, was again considered in Committee of the Whole, reported without amendment, read the third time and passed.

[Private Members' Business was called pursuant to Standing Order 15 (3)]

(Public Bills)

The Order being read for the second reading of Bill C-19, An Act respecting the Canada Court of Indian Claims;

Mr. Howard, seconded by Mr. Barnett, moved,—That the said bill be now read a second time.

Whereupon, the honourable Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Citizenship and Immigration (Mr. McGee) raised a point of order to the effect that it contained money provisions and, therefore, it was not in order for a Private Member to proceed with the bill;

Mr. Speaker deferred consideration of the said question of order until the bill comes up for further consideration.

And debate arising on the said proposed motion of Mr. Howard, seconded by Mr. Barnett,—That the said bill be now read a second time;

The hour for Private Members' Business expired.

By unanimous consent, the House reverted to "Motions".

On motion of Mr. Ricard, seconded by Mr. Winkler, it was ordered,—That the names of Messrs. Carter, Smallwood, and Smith (Calgary South) be substituted for those of Messrs. Mitchell, Muir (Lisgar), and Baldwin on the Sessional Committee on Railways, Air Lines and Shipping.

By Mr. Halpenny, a Member of the Queen's Privy Council,—Return to an Order of the House, dated October 22, 1962, (Question No. 192) showing: 1. Did talks take place this year between officials of Canada, the United States, and British Columbia, or between officials of any of them, regarding the sale to the United States of the downstream benefits which Canada would acquire under the Columbia River Treaty and, if so, did these talks cover the question of what price or prices would be paid for said downstream benefits?

2. Has the government reached agreement with the Province of British Columbia as regards the sale, on a long-term basis, of downstream benefits under the Columbia River Treaty, to the United States?

By Mr. Halpenny,—Return to an Order of the House, dated November 12, 1962, (**Question No. 672*) showing: What were the rates of wages paid to each prevailing rates trade group at H.M.C. Dockyard, Halifax, and H.M.C. Dockyard, Esquimalt, on November 6, 1962?

By the Examiner of Petitions for Private Bills,—Seventeenth Report, pursuant to Standing Order 100, as follows:

The Examiner of Petitions for Private Bills has the honour to report that he has considered the following divorce bills:

Bill SD-28, An Act for the relief of Marie Claire Rollande Dubois.

Bill SD-36, An Act for the relief of Hale Calvin Reid.

Bill SD-163, An Act for the relief of Donald Edgar Hicks.

PRAYERS.

One petition for a Private Bill was presented in accordance with Standing Order 70(1).

Mr. Aiken, from the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce, presented the Second Report of the said Committee, which is as follows:

Your Committee has considered the following Bills and has agreed to report them without amendment:

Bill S-5, An Act respecting The Eastern Trust Company.

Bill S-6, An Act respecting The North American General Insurance Company.

On motion of Mr. Ricard, seconded by Mr. Winkler, it was ordered,—That the name of Mr. McDonald (Hamilton South) be substituted for that of Mr. Smallwood on the Sessional Committee on Railways, Air Lines and Shipping.

Mr. Mandziuk, seconded by Mr. Rapp, by leave of the House, introduced Bill C-82, An Act authorizing the Senate of Canada to Dissolve or Annul Marriages, which was read the first time and ordered for a second reading at the next sitting of the House.

Bill C-79, An Act to amend the Estate Tax Act, was read the third time and passed.

The Order being read for the third reading of Bill C-80, An Act to amend the Excise Tax Act;

Mr. Nowlan, seconded by Mrs. Fairclough, moved,—That the said bill be now read a third time and do pass.

After debate thereon, the question being put on the said motion, it was agreed to.

Accordingly, the said bill was read the third time and passed.

The Order being read for the third reading of Bill C-81, An Act to amend the Customs Tariff;

Mr. Nowlan, seconded by Mr. Fleming (Eglinton), moved,—That the said bill be now read a third time and do pass.

And debate arising thereon;

Mr. Pickersgill, seconded by Mr. McIlraith, moved in amendment thereto,—That all the words after “That” be struck out and the following substituted therefor:

“this Bill be not read a third time until surcharges approved by Order in Council which alter rates set out in this Bill and the Act which this Bill amends have been presented to the House for consideration.”

Whereupon, the Honourable the Minister of Finance, (Mr. Nowlan) raised a point of order to the effect that the amendment was irrelevant on the grounds that the surcharges referred to did not form part of the bill.

And debate arising on the point of order;

RULING BY MR. SPEAKER

MR. SPEAKER: In a more limited way an amendment may be advanced at third reading which could have been advanced at second reading. On the question of a reasoned amendment, I would put it to honourable Members that the fact that an amendment is a reasoned amendment does not give it, shall we say, a free ticket. Therefore, even though it may be a reasoned amendment, it may lose out on other grounds. I think that disposes entirely of the arguments with regard to whether or not this is a reasoned amendment. Even if it is, that does not necessarily let it in.

In considering the amendment as put before me, I would refer first of all to citation 418 in Beauchesne (4th Edition) where we see that the second sentence reads as follows: “All amendments which may be moved on a second reading of a bill may be moved on the third reading with the restriction that they cannot deal with any matter which is not contained in the bill.”

Here the question is whether there is any distinction between surcharges and any matters found within the bill. In the bill there are amendments to rates. There are no references to surcharges whatsoever; and, if I need any buttressing on the question of what can be referred to, I would refer honourable Members to page 171 of Beauchesne (4th Edition), citation 203, paragraph (3), which is in these words: “An amendment setting forth a proposition dealing with a matter which is foreign to the proposition involved in the main motion is not relevant and cannot be moved.”

I thank all honourable Members for what they have said, but with the greatest respect I am of the opinion that surcharges are not rates within the meaning of the Customs Tariff Act. Surcharges are something ancillary and not generally applied. They are removable by order. They are of an entirely different category and, therefore, they are not a matter referred to within the bill. There is a clear distinction in my mind between surcharges and the customs rates set out in the bill under consideration as well as in the Customs Tariff Act. In addition, I think the amendment would be out of order on a second basis in that in effect it is an expanded negative and so is contrary to the sense of the main motion. Therefore, I cannot accept the amendment.

And debate continuing on the main motion,—That Bill C-81, An Act to amend the Customs Tariff, be now read a third time and do pass;

Mr. Douglas, seconded by Mr. Herridge, moved in amendment thereto,—That this Bill be not now read a third time but that it be referred to the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce for consideration and report.

The Order being read for the second reading of Bill SD-12, An Act for the relief of Alethea Sarah Ivy Fowler;

Mr. Mandziuk, seconded by Mr. Rapp, moved,—That the said bill be now read a second time.

And debate arising thereon;

The honourable Member for Skeena (Mr. Howard) having referred to and discussed the printed evidence taken by the Senate Standing Committee on Divorce;

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. SPEAKER: In so far as the question of what may be discussed at this time is concerned, I think it is clear that there is before us a bill which proposes that the marriage on a certain date between certain parties should be dissolved, as indicated in the preamble. That is the principle of the bill. If the honourable Member for Skeena (Mr. Howard) can show me the difference between going into considerable detail as to whether there ever was a marriage, by looking at the evidence, and whether there was any adultery, by going to the evidence, I should be glad to hear him, but I have some difficulty in distinguishing them. Certainly, the question of proof of either of these things is not, I submit, for the consideration of the House at this stage. They will be, ultimately, through the Committee, but not on second reading. If the principle of this bill, that this marriage be dissolved, does not meet with the approval of the House, then the thing is to vote on that point so as to decide one way or another in this particular instance without reference to the evidence behind it but bearing in mind what is the difference between a Private and a Public Bill on second reading.

And debate arising on the point of order;

RULING BY MR. SPEAKER

MR. SPEAKER: It seems to me that there is a misapprehension as to the difference between second reading of a Public Bill and of a Private Bill.

I would also place this point before certain honourable Members who have spoken—perhaps there are others—who may not have an appreciation of the functions involved and what is going to happen to this bill or bills of a similar type if they should receive second reading. There is a Miscellaneous Private Bills Committee in which this bill can be studied. If honourable Members will either become members of that Committee or attend the meetings of that Committee, as others have done, they will learn what can be done at that Committee. If its members are not satisfied, they may request that the witnesses be called and examined, as has been done by that Committee. That is the purpose of having the bill referred to the Committee and why it is not discussed here in the House.

It is on that basis that I am of the opinion that on second reading it is improper to discuss any of the evidence. It is only proper to discuss the principle of the bill. Shall there be or shall there not be a divorce or relief as sought in the bill? Appreciating as I do the nature of the second reading of a Private Bill as indicated in citations 482 and 483 in Beauchesne (4th Edition), which furthermore has been the practice of this House for years and has been accepted by all, I would point out that it is acceptance in principle only, with the bill being referred to the Committee for greater study.

That is what my ruling is. If honourable Members find the principle of the bill repugnant, they may seek to defeat the bill, but only on the basis of principle and not by going into the evidence. Reference was made a few moments ago to another Private Bill. It would have been equally meritorious, I would suggest, to seek to have the honourable Member who presented the bill put before the House the certificate of incorporation of the company or other documentation of the company. This is not done on second reading in this House. It may be done in the Committee. That is what I propose to rule, and I so rule.

And the question being put on the motion,—That Bill SD-12, An Act for the relief of Alethea Sarah Ivy Fowler, be now read a second time; it was agreed to on the following division:

PRAYERS.

Mr. Monteith, seconded by Mr. Hees, moved,—That a Special Committee be appointed to consider and report upon (a) the law and practices relating to the control of the introduction, marketing and use of drugs; and (b) the dangers arising from contamination of food by the use of chemicals to kill weeds, insects and other pests;

That the Committee consist of 15 Members to be designated by the House;

That the Committee be empowered to send for persons and papers and to report from time to time;

That the Committee be empowered to sit during the sittings of the House;

That the Committee have power to print such papers and evidence from day to day as may be deemed advisable; and

That Standing Order 66 be suspended in relation thereto.

And debate arising thereon;

Mr. Martin (Essex East), seconded by Mr. Habel, moved in amendment thereto,—That the words “and cost” be added after the word “use” in part (a) of the first paragraph of the motion.

Whereupon the honourable Member for Peace River (Mr. Baldwin) raised a point of order to the effect that the amendment was irrelevant to the main motion;

And debate arising on the point of order;

RULING BY MR. SPEAKER

MR. SPEAKER: On the matter of whether this amendment can be received at all, I would draw honourable Members' attention to Beauchesne's Fourth

Edition, citation 291, which reads as follows: "When the House is considering a motion, of which notice has been given, for the appointment of a select committee, a member cannot move in amendment that the committee be given wider powers than those which were set down in the notice."

In addition, there is this dilemma that the Honourable Member for Essex East (Mr. Martin) faces. If in the word "marketing" there is included the question of cost, then the amendment is redundant. On the other hand, if it is not included in "marketing", he is seeking to widen the powers of the committee and this is something the Honourable Member cannot do. He cannot seek to widen the powers of a committee. As a matter of fact the Minister, in presenting this motion, could not put forward an amendment to broaden the powers of a committee without the unanimous consent of the House. If the House gives unanimous consent, then, of course, that could be done. The powers are very limited here.

I could give the Honourable Member many more citations and rulings by Speakers. There is one by Mr. Speaker Macdonald which appears in Journals for April 4, 1951, page 243. He ruled that "an amendment cannot be moved giving the committee wider powers than those which were set out in the Notice of Motion". Then, there is another ruling of Mr. Speaker Macdonald's on November 2, 1951, as contained in the Journals, page 67. He said, and I quote: "I might say at this time that if the Minister himself proposed an amendment which would widen the terms of the resolution I could not allow it to stand unless it was with the unanimous consent of the House."

There were other rulings in 1952, as published in the Journals on page 240, again by Mr. Speaker Macdonald; in 1959, April 29, appearing in the Journals on page 361, a ruling by Mr. Speaker Michener. I cannot, therefore, accept the amendment.

After further debate, the question being put on the main motion, it was agreed to.

Bill C-94, An Act to provide for the establishment of an Atlantic Development Board, was again considered in Committee of the Whole, and further progress having been made and reported, the Committee obtained leave to consider it again at the next sitting of the House.

PRAYERS.

Mr. Pearson, from his place in the House, asked leave under Standing Order 26 to move the adjournment of the House for the purpose of discussing a definite matter of urgent public importance, and stated the matter to be: "The statement made last night by the U.S. Department of State contradicting the recent statements of the Prime Minister and the Minister of National Defence, concerning the joint defence arrangements of the Canadian and U.S. governments".

Mr. Speaker, having stated that the question could be raised when a Supply Motion is called on Monday next, decided that the question was not a matter of "urgent public importance" within the meaning of those words under Standing Order 26.

Whereupon the Honourable the Leader of the Opposition (Mr. Pearson) stated that he desired to appeal to the House from this decision.

Mr. Speaker ruled that there could be no appeal to the House in this regard, and quoted from Hansard (page 1153, Volume I, 1960) where the then Speaker said: "I refer the honourable Member to the Journals of the House of Commons for 1955, page 858, where the same point was dealt with by the Speaker of the day, who said:

'In the future, whenever I make a ruling to the effect that the motion should not be accepted because it is not in order or is not of urgent public importance—that is, that there is no urgency of debate—I will not grant an appeal from my decision that there is no appeal.'

Thereupon the Honourable Member for Essex East (Mr. Martin) appealed to the House from the ruling that there could be no appeal from a ruling by the Chair under Standing Order 26.

And the Members having been called in;

And the question being put by Mr. Speaker: "Shall the decision of the Chair, on the appeal to the House of the Honourable Member for Essex East (Mr. Martin), be sustained?"—It was negatived on the following division:

No. 72

JOURNALS

OF THE

HOUSE OF COMMONS

---

OTTAWA, TUESDAY, 5th FEBRUARY, 1963.

---

2.30 o'clock p.m.

PRAYERS.

Mr. Macnaughton, from the Standing Committee on Public Accounts, presented the Second Report of the said Committee, which is as follows:

In its Order of Reference dated January 23, 1963, the House has referred to this Committee, inter alia, the Report of the Auditor General for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1962.

At its meeting of January 29, 1963, your Committee agreed to give priority to two items contained in the said Report, namely, paragraph 95 entitled "Access to taxation collection files refused", and paragraph 21 entitled "Recruitment of Audit Office Staff".

Your Committee held four meetings on these matters and examined the following witnesses: The Honourable George P. Nowlan, Minister of Finance; Mr. M. Henderson, Auditor General of Canada; Mr. J. G. McEntyre, Deputy Minister (Taxation), Department of National Revenue; Dr. M. Ollivier, Law Clerk and Parliamentary Counsel; Mr. Ian Stevenson, Assistant Auditor General and Messrs. G. R. Long, C. E. Cheney, M. Laroche, of the Auditor General's office; Miss Ruth Addison, Acting Chairman, Civil Service Commission; Mr. Paul Pelletier, Commissioner, Civil Service Commission.

The Committee notes with pleasure that the files referred to in Section 95 of the said Report have this day been made available to the Auditor General.

The Committee also heard Dr. M. Ollivier, the Parliamentary Counsel, on the Interpretation of certain provisions of the Income Tax Act, and Section 66 of the Financial Administration Act, in which he expressed his opinion that Section 66 of the Financial Administration Act since it was enacted in 1951 took precedence over Section 133 of the Income Tax Act enacted in 1948.

The Committee, however, recommends that further consideration be given by the law officers of the Crown as to whether any changes which might be considered necessary to remove any existing doubts as to interpretation of the above mentioned Act be proposed to the House.

The Committee on two previous occasions has recommended that immediate attention be given to the problem of recruitment of staff by the Auditor General and sees no reason at the present time to alter its recommendations made in two previous years. (See Third Report 1960, and Fifth Report 1961).

The Committee gave consideration to Section 65 of the Financial Administration Act and to Section 74 of the Civil Service Act.

The Committee is of the opinion that consideration be given to amending Section 65 of the Financial Administration Act so as to authorize that the Auditor General recruit and manage his own staff with the approval of the Treasury Board and that in the meantime the Civil Service Commission should immediately reconsider its position with respect to Section 74 of the Civil Service Act, since the Committee is convinced that the special character of the Auditor General's work requires that this be done.

A copy of the Minutes of Proceedings and Evidence (Issue Nos. 1 to 4 inclusive) relating to these two items is appended.

(The Minutes of Proceedings and Evidence accompanying the said Report recorded as Appendix No. 7 to the Journals).

The House resumed debate on the proposed motion of Mr. Nowlan, seconded by Mrs. Fairclough,—That Mr. Speaker do now leave the Chair for the House to resolve itself into Committee of Supply.

And on the proposed motion of Mr. Pearson, seconded by Mr. Chevrier, in amendment thereto,—That all the words after "That" be deleted and the following substituted therefor:

"this government, because of lack of leadership, the breakdown of unity in the Cabinet, and confusion and indecision in dealing with national and international problems, does not have the confidence of the Canadian people."

And on the proposed motion of Mr. Thompson, seconded by Mr. Marcoux, in amendment to the said proposed amendment,—That all the words after "government" be deleted and the following substituted therefor:

"has failed up to this time to give a clear statement of policy respecting Canada's national defence, and has failed to organize the business of the House so that the 1963-64 Estimates and Budget could be introduced, and has failed to outline a positive programme of follow-up action respecting many things for which this Parliament and previous Parliaments have already given authority, and does not have the confidence of the Canadian people."

And debate continuing; at 8.15 o'clock p.m., Mr. Speaker interrupted the proceedings pursuant to Standing Order 56(4) (d);

And the question being put on the amendment to the amendment, it was agreed to on the following division:

Speaker's Rulings and Statements:Adjournment Motions under S.O.26 for Debates of Urgent Public Importance:*

Mr. Pearson (Opposition Leader), sought leave so as to discuss contradictory statement of U.S. State Department concerning joint defence arrangements: - 461. Mr. Speaker Lambert ruled that the subject could be raised on next Monday's Supply Motion and urgency of debate was not, therefore, of "urgent public importance" within the meaning of S.O.26: - 461. Mr. Pearson desired an appeal to the House from this ruling: - 461. Mr. Speaker, citing rulings in 1960 and 1955 by preceding Speakers on this point, then ruled that there could be no appeal in this regard: — 461. Mr. Martin (Essex East), then appealed to the House from the latter ruling; i.e., "that there could be no appeal from a ruling by the Chair under S.O. 26 'that there is no appeal' ", which ruling was not sustained (Yeas 104, Nays 122): — 462-3. Thereupon, the question being put on Mr. Pearson's appeal to the House, the Speaker's ruling thereon was also not sustained on a division of voices declared by Mr. Speaker: — 463. Leave having thus been affirmed, Mr. Pearson's motion, "That this House do now adjourn" was then proposed as a question and debated until 10 p.m. when the House adjourned: — 463-4.

Speaker's Rulings and Statements — (Continued)Adjournment Motions under S.Q. 26 for Debates of Urgent Public Importance — (Concluded)

Bills, Government; Second Reading Amendments:

Mr. Scott (Danforth), during debate on motion for second reading of Bill C-63 (Export Credits Insurance), proposed in amendment; i.e., not to proceed with the Bill as it did not include an extension of provisions in section 23 of the Act, which was challenged on a point of order as to its admissibility: — 75-6. Mr. Speaker Lambert ruled the amendment out of order on grounds of irrelevancy; i.e., it was a substantive motion, not declaratory of an adverse principle, seeking to bring section 23 of the parent Act before the House and thus introducing a new question and debate unrelated to any provision in the amending Bill; and in support of his ruling, Mr. Speaker quoted from previous Speakers' rulings made in 1949 and 1957 regarding amending Bills to parent Acts, and to a 1959 ruling regarding amendments declaratory of an adverse principle, supported by Cit. 382 of Beauchesne's 4th Ed. and references at pages 421 and 531 of May's 16th Ed. regarding relevancy: — 76-7.

Bills, Government; Committee of the Whole Amendments:

See Chairman's Rulings.

Bills, Government; Third Reading Amendments:

Mr. Pickersgill (Bonavista-Twillingate), during debate on motion for third reading of Bill C-81 (Customs Tariff), proposed an amendment to defer third reading until surcharges approved by Order in Council, which alter rates set out in this Bill and the parent Act, are presented to the House for consideration; which amendment was challenged on a point of order by the Minister of Finance (Mr. Nowlan) as irrelevant because surcharges did not form part of Bill: — 298. Mr. Speaker Lambert, quoting Cit. 203(3) of Beauchesne's 4th Ed., ruled the amendment out of order on grounds of irrelevancy; i.e., "surcharges" are not "rates" within the meaning of the Bill or parent Act; surcharges may be imposed or removed by executive order whereas rates are dealt with by legislation; and that the amendment was, in effect, an expanded negative. On "reasoned amendments", Mr. Speaker quoted from Cit. 418 of Beauchesne's 4th Ed. to the effect that the same kind of amendments may be proposed on third reading as on second reading but limited by the restriction against advancing matters not contained in the Bill: — 298-9.

Mr. MacEachen (Inverness-Richmond), during debate on motion for third reading of Bill C-94 (Atlantic Development Board), proposed in amendment; i.e., to defer third reading for re-committal to Committee of the Whole to consider amending clause 9(1) by adding a new paragraph: — 387. Mr. Speaker Lambert, under Cit. 418 of Beauchesne's 4th Ed., ruled the amendment out of order as it dealt with a matter not contained in the Bill: — 387. On appeal to the House, the ruling was sustained (Yeas 113, Nays 90): — 387-8.

Bills, Private (Divorce); Second Reading:

A point of order was raised when Mr. Howard (Skeena), in the debate on the motion for second reading of Bill SD-12 (Fowler divorce case), referred to and discussed the printed evidence from the Senate: — 354. Mr. Speaker Lambert ruled Mr. Howard out of order in that the second reading stage of a divorce Bill was merely conditional acceptance in general principle only of the Bill, as indicated in Citations 482 and 483 of Beauchesne's 4th Ed. regarding distinctions between Public Bills, Private Bills, and Private Bills for Divorce; that, according to long-established practice, detailed discussion of divorce evidence and the question of proof was the function of the Miscellaneous Private Bills Committee; that the only alternative to progressing the Bill, without discussing the evidence in detail, was for the House to defeat the Bill if the conditional acceptance of its general principle was repugnant: — 354-5.

Speaker's Rulings and Statements – (Continued)Bills, Public (Private Members); Introduction and First Reading:

On the 3rd sitting day of the Session when the first list of Private Members Public Bills appeared for Introduction on the Order Paper, Mr. Speaker Lambert stated he was entering a "caveat" to the effect that all such Bills would be scrutinized for defects prior to the second reading stage because the House was not yet in a position to see them to judge their acceptability under the rules; and that first reading "now" permitted printing and availability for the next stage: – 26.

Bills, Public (Private Members); Second Reading:

A point of order was raised by Mr. McCleave (Halifax), on the motion of Mr. Howard (Skeena), for second reading of Bill C-11 (Trans-Canada Highway), that it was not open to a Private Member to sponsor a Bill with a money provision: – 146-7. Mr. Speaker Lambert's ruling, that the point of order was well-taken as the Bill had not been preceded by a Crown-recommended resolution adopted in Committee of the Whole, was appealed to the House and sustained (Yeas 195, Nays 14): – 147-8.

A point of order was raised by Mr. McGee (York-Scarborough), on the motion of Mr. Howard (Skeena), for second reading of Bill C-19 (Canada Court of Indian Claims), that a Private Member could not proceed with a Bill containing money provisions: – 287. Mr. Speaker deferred the question of order until the Bill comes up again, permitting debate to proceed: – 287.

Budget Presentation Procedure:

See Ways and Means (Budget) hereunder for Speaker Lambert's ruling respecting procedure preliminary to Budget Presentation and Debate.

Committees, Special; Orders of Reference:

On a government motion made on due Notice to establish a Food and Drugs Committee, Mr. Martin (Essex East), proposed an amendment, to insert certain words, on which a point of order as to relevancy was raised by Mr. Baldwin (Peace River): – 371. Mr. Speaker Lambert ruled the amendment out of order on the grounds it would widen the powers proposed by the main motion; that it was redundant if an alternative meaning were placed on the words to be inserted; and quoted Cit. 291 of Beauchesne's 4th Ed. and also cited rulings by previous Speakers made in 1951, 1952, and 1959 in support: – 371-2.

Questions on Order Paper:

A point of order, on Question No. 73 by Mr. Caouette (Villeneuve) had been raised by Mr. Fisher (Port Arthur) on Oct. 4, 1962, as to the propriety and removal from the Order Paper if found offensive or improper; i.e., part 3 alleged assertions or opinions on public servants' political persuasions, and thus offended the usages, traditions and proprieties of the House: – 70-1. Mr. Speaker Lambert ruled that part 3 be deleted and the remainder could be answered as the Minister deemed fit; that, in the absence of a definite citation by Bourinot, Beauchesne, or May, and also of a definite ruling by any Speaker, part 3 sought private matters beyond the government's administrative responsibility unless public servants were actively and publicly engaged in politics; that, with regard to the limited authority of the Clerks at the Table and the Speaker relating to Notices of Questions for or on the Order Paper, these are set out at page 313 of Bourinot's 4th Ed. and Cit. 172 of Beauchesne's 4th Ed.; and that, on the point of assertions and opinions, the current Notices of Questions emphasized a very fine line for determining such a division in the light of well-established practice permitting redrafts for conformity: – 70-1.

Statement by Mr. Speaker Lambert extensively outlining certain principles as guideposts to Members for Questions generally and for oral and supplementary questions asked when Orders of the Day are called, including the need for proper Notice; referred extensively to and quoted from previous Speakers' rulings and statements made thereon since 1940, the limited role and authority of the Speaker compared with U.K. practice, and unacceptability as to form of many questions being asked when Orders of the Day are called if they were tendered for the Notice Paper: – 79-84.

Speaker's Rulings and Statements — (Concluded)

Questions on Order Paper answered by Tabled Returns:

On a point of privilege alleged by Mr. Pickersgill on Nov. 1, 1962, with respect to the impropriety and insufficiency of the answer to part 2 of Question No. 273 tabled Oct. 31, 1962, as a Return to an Order of the House by the Minister of Veterans Affairs: — 285. Mr. Speaker Lambert ruled it was not a question of privilege nor a point of order but rather a matter that could found, and be aired as, a grievance; no one, not even the Chair, could judge an answer's sufficiency even if the reply is capricious; S.O. 39(4) stipulates a reply in such cases be made in the "form" of a return and not necessarily "seriatim" answers as the Question appears; there could be no "double standard" in answering written Questions (e.g., returns tabled forthwith, at a later date, or for those to be printed in Hansard) even though, as stated at page 244 of Bourinot's 4th Ed., such Questions made Orders for Returns are the equivalent or a short method of putting a motion for production of papers; he also stated there were several improper Questions on the Order Paper which raise points of order that Members should be prepared to discuss if raised by him the following week: — 285-7.

Questions, Oral (Private Notice) on calling Orders of the Day:

Statement by Mr. Speaker Lambert extensively outlining certain principles as guideposts to Members for Questions generally and for oral and supplementary questions asked when Orders of the Day are called, including the need for proper notice; referred extensively to and quoted from previous Speakers' rulings and statements made thereon since 1940, the limited role and authority of the Speaker compared with U.K. practice, and unacceptability as to form of many questions being asked when Orders of the Day are called if they were tendered for the Notice Paper: — 79-84.

Mr. Martin (Essex East) had posed a Question to the Minister of Northern Affairs and National Resources about the Director of the National Parks Branch: — 101. Mr. Speaker Lambert's ruling, that the question contravened S.O. 39(1) because it expressed an opinion, appealed to the House and sustained (Yeas 147, Nays 85): — 102-3.

Mr. Fisher (Port Arthur) had posed a question based on a discussion arising from a statement made by Mr. Woolliams (Bow River): — 103. Mr. Speaker Lambert's ruling, that the question was not the type to be asked when Orders of the Day are called, appealed to the House and sustained (Yeas 130, Nays 103): — 103-4.

Ways and Means (Budget):

Mr. Knowles (Winnipeg North Centre) raised a point of order that Order No. 27 on the Order Paper "House again in Committee of Ways and Means" was read for the purpose of permitting the Minister of Finance to make the Budget Presentation under S.O. 58(1) and to move: "That Mr. Speaker do now leave the Chair" rather than leaving the Chair without question put: — 133. Mr. Speaker Lambert ruled that it was mandatory under S.O. 58(1) that he leave the Chair forthwith without question put when such an Order is read; there could be no customary Budget Presentation, nor required consequential motion "That Mr. Speaker do now leave the Chair", unless a Minister of the Crown had previously stated such an intention and the Minister of Finance moved such a motion, nor could the government be compelled by opinion or in anticipation to do so: — 133-4.
